Sikeston Needs $125,000 Extra For Improvements

Sikeston must find $125,000 in extra revenue if it wants to adopt an improvement package recommended by committees examining the city manager's expenditure- revenue study, the planning and zoning commission discovered Tuesday night.

The committees, each studying a different part of the city's needs, listed what they considered to be the top priority needs in each area.

To adopt each item listed as top priority by the committees, it would cost the city about $1,097,000. Anticipated revenue, including $198,000 in federal revenue sharing and $32,000 in state gas tax money, would be $968,800.

Many of the capital improvements would be financed by general obligation bonds. The bond issues may be submitted to voters independent of each other to keep one or two unpopular programs from dragging the others down to defeat.

The committee on recreation and airport expansion and improvement recommended a capital improvemant program totaling $229,000. Maintenance costs would increase by $3,000 under the program.

It would include runway and taxiway extension and paving, improved lighting, acquisition of easements, upgrading the crosswind runway, upgrading the entrance road and landscaping the median on the entrance.

The committee recommended bond issues of $200,000 to help pay for the recreational complex and $300,000 to help pay for an indoor swimming center. The bond issues would be matched by federal funds.

Other No. 1 priorities listed are $20,000 for maintaining the recreational complex, $11,000 for a full-time recreation director and $8,500 for a complete recreation program, making total operating expenses of $39,500.

Total capital expenses would be $1,010,000, including $10,000 for maintenance equipment.

The police and fire committee recommended a capital improvements program for the police department of $26,500, including $11,500 for tape recording communications equipment and $15,000 for patrol car replacements.

The committee recommended an increase in the police operating budget of $13,500, with $10,000 for compensation, $2,500 for training and $2,000 for traffic enforcement index and pedestrian safety.

A capital improvements package of $217,000 was recommended for the fire department, including $70,000 for a new northside fire station, $102,000 for apparatus and furnishings for the new station, $40,000 for replacement apparatus and $5,000 for communications equipment.

The operating expenses would increase by $15,000 - $18,000 for new personnel, $4,000 clothing allowance adjustment, $4,000 for a new car for the fire chief and $3,600 for compensation after eliminating city-provided housing for the fire chief and assistant fire chief.

The roadways and sanitation committee proposed a capital improvements program of $136,000, with $60,000 going for the widening of Ables Road and $76,000 for the widening of Murray Lane.

An annual $35,000 seal-coating program for the city's asphalt streets was proposed by the committee.

Gray Says He Gave Go Ahead To Shoot Out Tires On Plane

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Americans have made fundamental commitment in the war against crime "although I hesitate to conclude that we have, as a people, wholly turned the corner in the war against crime," L. Patrick Gray, acting director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said here Tuesday night.

Addressing 500 members of the Backstoppers, an organization that assists widows and orphans of firemen and policemen killed in the line of duty, Gray reported the rate of increase in major crime has been slowed "almost to a dead stop."

At a news conference earlier, Gray, a native of St. Louis, said that it was his decision to shoot out the tires on a hijacked Southern Airways jetliner in Orlando, Fla., Saturday.

Explaining the decision to newsmen, Gray said, "After 28½ hours, six landings in the United States, one landing in Cuba and one in Toronto, it was obvious that the passengers, crew and hijackers were under considerable. stress and fatigue."

"I considered that if they made another takeoff, their lives would be in dire jeopardy. I made the decision to abort the flight, and Southern concurred fully," Gray said.

The plane managed to take off, however, and land a second time in Cuba, where the passengers and crew were released.

He denied that the shooting order originated with President Nixon.

Asked if he expected to be named the FBI's permanent director, Gray said, "I have no such expectation at all. That is a decision that has to be made, as you well know, by the President."

He said he has not discussed the appointment with the President.

He assailed former U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, who was also in St. Louis to speak Tuesday, for calling him a "political pawn of Nixon."

Gray said, "Mr. Nixon instructed me from the start to keep the FBI free of any political influence or political taint."

"Clark is dead wrong. I know that I am non-political in this job, and the President knows it," Gray said.

During his address later, the new FBI head commented on the relaxation of the department's dress codes, which were strictly enforced by the late J. Edgar Hoover, whom Gray replaced.

"Colored shirts, hair worn a bit longer and a few mustaches are not going to wipe out the fierce pride that exists within the hearts and minds of the men and women of the FBI," Gray said.

Payments Balance Worse For Quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's balance of payments deficit worsened in the JulySeptember quarter, reversing nine months of improvement, the Commerce Department said today.

The department said preliminary information showed that its "official reserve transactions" balance was in the red by $4.7 billion in the third quarter compared with $900 million in the previous quarter.

The main reason for the deterioration was an increased dollar drain early in the quarter caused by unsettled foreign exchange markets after the British government floated the pound sterling from its official value.

The dollar outflow in the official balance improved substantially during the latter part of the quarter as relative calm returned to the international monetary scene, the department said.

The official balance, as it is known, is designed to measure primarily the transactions between governments and foreign central banks. But it is regarded as the broadest measure of the balance of payments since it also takes into account most private transactions.

It was the first time the balance-of-payments deficit had taken a turn for the worse since the third quarter of 1971, a time when extreme pressures in foreign money markets caused President Nixon to suspend convertability of the dollar into gold.

Three Receive Sentences In New Madrid Court

NEW MADRID — Three men were sentenced Tuesday in Circuit Court on guilty pleas to criminal charges by Judge William L. Ragland.

Samuel Monroe received a two- year sentence on forgery charge and was allowed jail time. Monroe was charged with forgery on May 6 when he attempted to cash a $53.40 fraudulent check purportedly made to Jimmy White by A. C. Riley.

James Earl Jones and James Ronald Jones of Caruthersville were placed on supervised probation after receiving concurrent sentences of two years for burglary and two years for larceny. The pair was charged with a break-in Aug. 11 at Lilbourn High School and theft of drums valued at $400.

Five were granted divorces.

Mary V. Faries of Matthews was divorced from Ralph O. Faries. She was restored to her maiden name of Vandever.

Kathy Jean McClung of Parma was awarded a divorce from Larry McClung.

Betty J. Dockins of rural New Madrid was awarded custody of two children, $50 monthly per child for support, $100 monthly alimony and a divorce in her suit against Ronald G. Dockins.

Elvin E. Graham was divorced from Bonnie M. Graham.

Date Set For Bond Issue Referendum

The Sikeston R-6 Board of Education Tuesday set Nov. 30 as the date for a referendum on a $1 million bond issue to build a new school for eighth and ninth grade students.

The date of the vote was delayed because of legal technicalities and the need to wait for New Madrid County voters to decide on voter registration. The board had overlooked a 1969 law stating that only registered voters can vote in school elections.

The school district will have poll books at all precincts, unless New Madrid County can't get its registration completed in time. In that case, New Madrid county voters would have to sign affidavits affirming their residency.

The new building could be built and furnished without an increase in taxes.

A location south of the high school fieldhouse has been chosen.

The school district's assessed evaluation increased $1 million last year, according to figures released by Supt. Sam Harbin. The assessed evaluation increased from $24,979,319 to $25,946,289. The bulk of the increase came in the New Madrid County portion of the school district, where valuations rose by $875,763. Scott County valuations rose only $91,207.

The board also approved allowing Heritage House to hold back 25 per cent of its payments to the school board. The housing authority pays the board 10 per cent of its rental collection in lieu of taxes.

The housing authority asked to retain the 25 per cent to help keep Heritage House operating.

Harbin told the board the amount lost to the board was not significant because additional units will make up the amount the board would lose.

Payments Balance Worse For Quarter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's balance of payments deficit worsened in the JulySeptember quarter, reversing nine months of improvement, the Commerce Department said today.

The department said preliminary information showed that its "official reserve transactions" balance was in the red by $4.7 billion in the third quarter compared with $900 million in the previous quarter.

The main reason for the deterioration was an increased dollar drain early in the quarter caused by unsettled foreign exchange markets after the British government floated the pound sterling from its official value.

The dollar outflow in the official balance improved substantially during the latter part of the quarter as relative calm returned to the international monetary scene, the department said.

The official balance, as it is known, is designed to measure primarily the transactions between governments and foreign central banks. But it is regarded as the broadest measure of the balance of payments since it also takes into account most private transactions.

It was the first time the balance-of-payments deficit had taken a turn for the worse since the third quarter of 1971, a time when extreme pressures in foreign money markets caused President Nixon to suspend convertability of the dollar into gold.

Three Receive Sentences In New Madrid Court

NEW MADRID — Three men were sentenced Tuesday in Circuit Court on guilty pleas to criminal charges by Judge William L. Ragland.

Samuel Monroe received a two- year sentence on forgery charge and was allowed jail time. Monroe was charged with forgery on May 6 when he attempted to cash a $53.40 fraudulent check purportedly made to Jimmy White by A. C. Riley.

James Earl Jones and James Ronald Jones of Caruthersville were placed on supervised probation after receiving concurrent sentences of two years for burglary and two years for larceny. The pair was charged with a break-in Aug. 11 at Lilbourn High School and theft of drums valued at $400.

Five were granted divorces.

Mary V. Faries of Matthews was divorced from Ralph O. Faries. She was restored to her maiden name of Vandever.

Kathy Jean McClung of Parma was awarded a divorce from Larry McClung.

Betty J. Dockins of rural New Madrid was awarded custody of two children, $50 monthly per child for support, $100 monthly alimony and a divorce in her suit against Ronald G. Dockins.

Gray Says He Gave Go Ahead To Shoot Out Tires On Plane

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Americans have made fundamental commitment in the war against crime "although I hesitate to conclude that we have, as a people, wholly turned the corner in the war against crime," L. Patrick Gray, acting director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said here Tuesday night.

Addressing 500 members of the Backstoppers, an organization that assists widows and orphans of firemen and policemen killed in the line of duty, Gray reported the rate of increase in major crime has been slowed "almost to a dead stop."

At a news conference earlier, Gray, a native of St. Louis, said that it was his decision to shoot out the tires on a hijacked Southern Airways jetliner in Orlando, Fla., Saturday.

Explaining the decision to newsmen, Gray said, "After 28½ hours, six landings in the United States, one landing in Cuba and one in Toronto, it was obvious that the passengers, crew and hijackers were under considerable stress and fatigue."

"I considered that if they made another takeoff, their lives would be in dire jeopardy. I made the decision to abort the flight, and Southern concurred fully," Gray said.

The plane managed to take off, however, and land a second time in Cuba, where the passengers and crew were released.

He denied that the shooting order originated with President Nixon.

Asked if he expected to be named the FBI's permanent director, Gray said, "I have no such expectation at all. That is a decision that has to be made, as you well know, by the President."

He said he has not discussed the appointment with the President.

He assailed former U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, who was also in St. Louis to speak Tuesday, for calling him a "political pawn of Nixon."

Gray said, "Mr. Nixon instructed me from the start to keep the FBI free of any political influence or political taint."

"Clark is dead wrong. I know that I am non-political in this job, and the President knows it," Gray said.

During his address later, the new FBI head commented on the relaxation of the department's dress codes, which were strictly enforced by the late J. Edgar Hoover, whom Gray replaced.

"Colored shirts, hair worn a bit longer and a few mustaches are not going to wipe out the fierce pride that exists within the hearts and minds of the men and women of the FBI," Gray said.

Date Set For Bond Issue Referendum

The Sikeston R-6 Board of Education Tuesday set Nov. 30 as the date for a referendum on a $1 million bond issue to build a new school for eighth and ninth grade students.

The date of the vote was delayed because of legal technicalities and the need to wait for New Madrid County voters to decide on voter registration. The board had overlooked a 1969 law stating that only registered voters can vote in school elections.

The school district will have poll books at all precincts, unless New Madrid County can't get its registration completed in time. In that case, New Madrid county voters would have to sign affidavits affirming their residency.

The new building could be built and furnished without an increase in taxes.

A location south of the high school fieldhouse has been chosen.

The school district's assessed evaluation increased $1 million last year, according to figures released by Supt. Sam Harbin. The assessed evaluation increased from $24,979,319 to $25,946,289. The bulk of the increase came in the New Madrid County portion of the school district, where valuations rose by $875,763. Scott County valuations rose only $91,207.

The board also approved allowing Heritage House to hold back 25 per cent of its payments to the school board. The housing authority pays the board 10 per cent of its rental collection in lieu of taxes.

The housing authority asked to retain the 25 per cent to help keep Heritage House operating.

Harbin told the board the amount lost to the board was not significant because additional units will make up the amount the board would lose.

AND A TIME FOR THANKS

Here and there in this nation there are people who have little to give thanks about, or so they think. There are good reasons — a recent death in the family, illness, poverty and squalor, a broken marriage, the part and parcel of the tribulations of life. There are the lonely aged in nursing homes, the soldiers far from home, the retarded child who cannot comprehend Thanksgiving. All of these exist.

But this secular American celebration is in truth a thanksgiving to God, and those who know Him will give thanks whatever their condition or situation.

The day was set aside to commemorate what you might call the first foreigners to colonize this country, and the survival of a few of them. It was 1621 when Gov. William Bradford of the Plymouth Colony proclaimed a day of thanksgiving. It was not a time of joy, because half of the colony had died of starvation, illness and cold the previous winter.

But the hardy ones had made a sufficient harvest through the next summer and fall, and in the age-old custom they came together to make a festival affair simply because the good Earth had sustained them.

For the modern day artist Norman Rockwell probably summed up Thanksgiving as well as anyone. Those of us old enough should remember his painting done in 1951. A grandmother and a child are seated in a truck stop cafe, caught in the glancing rays of a midday sun, as they bow their heads and say grace over a Thanksgiving lunch. There is no cornucopia. All the humility and thankfulness of man for whatever humble sustenance he has are there.

Most of us in America have more material goods than we can say grace over. Despite the tears we shed over taxes and high prices, few of us can really feel what it was like to give thanks for enough food to keep a body alive. Malnutrition we may have in pockets of the country, but food we have in abundance.

This country has been good to Americans. Its soil, its climate, its resources have made us strong, healthy, well- cared for, and perhaps sometimes a little too proud of ourselves. Because we did not do it all ourselves. It was simply there, and we took it.

God gave it. And that is why we, just as the Pilgrims of Plymouth did, should give thanks today.

PERSON'S RETURN

It looks as if the long-awaited return of Juan Domingo Peron to Argentina, the country he ruled as virtual dictator for nine years, will finally take place on Friday, Nov. 17. On that day a chartered airliner is scheduled to bring Peron, now aged 77, and his wife, Isabel, to Buenos Aires from Rome. Press reports have indicated that the preserved body of Peron's former wife, Eva, also will be aboard.

It is always possible that Peron will change his mind at the last minute; past reports of his return have turned out to be false alarms. But the latest announcement of his plans seems solidly grounded in fact rather than hope. The aging dictator's travel schedule worked out in the course of talks in Spain between him and his supporters. An Alitalia plane already has been booked for "Operation Return," and arrangements have been made for bodyguards at the Rome airport and aboard the flight. Peron, sometimes derided for cowardice, seems determined to carrv the operation through no matter what happens.

In a message to Hector Campora, head of the Justicialista Party, Peron said he hoped that his return would bring "peace and understanding" to his troubled country. He urged his supporters -- who account for one-third or more of Argentina's voters -- to greet him "in an atmosphere of peace and calm." That may be easier said than done. The powerful General Confederation of Labor, whose 3.5 million members are staunchly Peronist, has declared Nov. 17 a national holiday. Their welcome- home demonstration could well get out of hand, especially if Eva Peron's remains are returned to Argentine soil.

But even if Peron received a restrained welcome, political tension in Argentina is certain to mount. The Justicialista Party has chosen him as its candidate in next March's presidential election. However, the national electorial tribunal on Nov. 1 upheld the validity of a government decree barring his candidacy. The decree, issued last July, required all presidential hopefuls to have taken up residence in Argentina by Aug. 25. Peronist lawyers contend that the decree was unconstitutional.

In exile since his overthrow in 1955, Peron tried to come back to Argentina six years ago. But he got only as far as Rio de Janeiro, where Brazilian authorities forced him to return to Spain. It still is not clear whether Peron intends to settle permanently in his native country or just pay a visit. Campora says: "It could be for a few days or for good. But it will not be for a few hours."

PREACHING FROM THE AUDIENCE

Everybody in the business world knows that there are good days and bad days, and irritable, unpleasant customers and prospects are part of the game.

The important thing to remember is this: don't take it personally. The customer isn't irritated at you as a person. He's irritated at you as a representative of your company. So don't get riled up. Just act your role and keep your personal feelings out of it.

The second thing is this: don't try to argue with him (or her) or contradict him--regardless of whether he is right or wrong--until he has finished blowing off steam and calmed down. Just be a concerned, interested, sympathetic listener.

An angry man (or woman) doesn't want to be reasoned with. He has developed a full head of steam and he isn't going to be satisfied until he blows it. So let him! After he has gotten it off his chest he'll feel better. Then you can start to talk things over sensibly.

If you and your company are wrong, admit it promptly. Do what you can to make amends and set the matter straight.

If the customer is in the wrong, be careful! Don't take it upon yourself to tell him so in so many words. Because he won't like it a bit. Nobody likes to be wrong, especially when he has blown his top and made a big fuss. It makes him feel like a sap.

Just discuss the matter calmly until he begins to see for himself that maybe he was at least partly to blame. Don't let him take all the blame--even if he deserves it. For the sake of good future relations try to take part of the responsibility off his shoulders. Try to think of something you can do that will show how sympathetic you are, something that will restore his feeling of goodwill toward you and your company. What's the use of winning arguments and losing customers?

It's always a temptation, of course, to tell an ornery customer to take his business and go jump in the lake. There's a lot more satisfaction, though, in taming the beast. It's more profitable, too.

STRIKES CURB FARM SALES OUTSIDE U. S.

Strikes caused losses in the hundreds of millions of dollars to American farmers from reduced 1971 sales, lower prices, and also from reduced future sales as buyers turn to other supply sources for the commodities they need, according to Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz.

Agricultural exports increased six per cent in calendar year 1971, compared to a 22 per cent increase in 1970. The increase gave agriculture a favorable trade balance of $1.9 billion in a year when the total U. S. trade balance had a deficit of $2 billion.

"We are naturally very pleased at achieving this record level in the face of a very difficult export situation because of the strikes," the Secretary said, "but we are also disappointed because it would have been a great deal higher if our farm products had been able to move freely to foreign markets."

WHEN THE BANDWAGONS ROLL

Thousands of acres on Connecticut, New York and New Jery have been infested by insects. Forests are threatened and the people of some regions were allegedly living" . . in a state of emergency" during the summer of 1971. Suspicion is growing that the ban on pesticide use has been at least partly responsible for what has been happening. Commenting editorially, BARRON'S National business and Financial Weekly, reports that, "In the northern part of New Jersey, which stopped the aerial spraying of DDT over half a decade ago, the gypsy moth for the second straight year has damaged thousands of acres of woodland. . . In one state after another to ban the pesticide---at least a dozen now have made the move - -strange things, ranging from the slaughter of honey-bees to the accidental loss of human life from highly toxic substitutes, have been happening. Indeed, throughout the U. S.. .lately have come reports of frightening outbreaks of malaria. Though fragmentary and scattered, the evidence should give reasonable men pause."

It could be that the bandwagon rush to ban pesticides will boomerang just as did the wholesale condemnation of the use of phosphates in detergents.

TIME FOR COMPROMISE

The adamancy of the antienergy environmentalist was the subject of an Address by the president of a major oil company. He made a good point when he said. "Compromise appears to be the only answer to the question . . .It is. . .a time when we must work towards an acceptable tradeoff between energy and the environment."

The case for a compromise is unanswerable. "It is estimated". the oil executive observed, "that our population will increase about 17 percent by 1985. At the same time, government and industry are forecasting that energy consumption will increase 100 percent." He explained the disproportion by noting, "We know that the people who are going to drastically affect the energy demands between now and 1985 are already born. They are the products of the baby boom of the late Forties and early Fifties. In the next few years they will move into the 25-35 age group, buying their first homes, their first new cars and starting their families. In short they will be consuming more energy." In addition, the disadvantaged members of society must continue to improve their standards of living, and "these improvements will require more energy consumption."

Who is qualified to decree that the disadvantaged and the young shall not be admitted to the comforts of an energy based society? Who could enforce such a decree even if they so wished? Obviously, the answer, is compromise. There is no turning back from the obligation to meet future energy demands anymore than there can be a rejection of the need to preserve a liveable environment.

Otherwise, why should it become increasingly difficult to tell the sexes apart?

When everyone today dresses, talks and acts alike, how can this be done? Well, mistakes are always possible, but there are still some clues as to how to tell the sexes apart.

For example:

If it can put a sock on while standing on one leg, it's a man. If it has to sit on the edge of the bed and then fall over backward to struggle into its stockings, it's a woman.

Does it usually shave above the shoulders? It's a guy. Does it usually shave below the shoulders? It's a gal.

If it bores you by always wanting to tell you its dreams, it's a her. If it bores you by always wanting to brag about its hangovers, it's a him.

If it says it wears the pants in the family, put it down as the papa. If it actually wears the pants in the family, put it down as the mama.

Can it drive better while sitting in the front seat of a car? Dad once more. Can it drive better while sitting in the back seat? Mom again.

Does it wear its dentures at all times because it can't stand the thought of being seen with them out? Dear old Grandma! Does it sometimes take its dentures out and leave them lying anywhere around the house because it hates to wear them anyway? Dear old Grandpa!

Does it believe that everything will be better and more glamorous after marriage? That's the prospective bride. Does it prove to her in time that marriage doesn't make quite all that much difference? That's the bridegroom.

In an emergency, of course, you can always ask the father or mother of a person what the sex of their offspring is. If they can't agree, you might be wise to drop the whole matter.

After all, there is a lot more to human life than sex—it says right here. All you have to do is to find out what that could possibly be.

ORIGINS OF FREEMASONRY TRACED BACK TO MOSES, ENOCH AND NOAH

It would be totally wrong to classify the old patriarchal religion of the ancients as the complete forerunner of Freemasonry, yet it would be equally in error to deny that our patriarchal ancestors did not make a valuable and lasting contribution.

The patriarchal religions of ancient times, the Hebrews—Moses, Enoch, Noah, Lamech and others, represented a system of togetherness under male dominance and supervision that was in its own way, a great fore- concept of the guilds and operative masons of the Middle Ages, in that the rules, regulations and patterns of life were of similar nature, formed a pattern by which Freemasonry, as we know it today, was based.

The patriarchs were supreme heads of the clan, laid down the law, formulated living procedure, and governed, settling all disputes and weighing all activities. So it is that this- the patriarchy- is the model on which the development of Freemasonry is based.

Developing this idea a little more, we find that our patriarchs are steeped in Masonry. Enoch, Lamech, Moses, have had Masonic legends and traditions built around them which form the basis for some of our ceremonies and rites, and these men serve as symbols for our estimate of Masonry. We cannot, nor must not underestimate the influence both of the venerable patriarchs themselves and of their systems of life.

In studying origins of Freemasonry we study trends and similiarities. The system of patriarchal government started with the Venerable Patriarch himself. He it was who made the laws, he it was who stipulated the method under which the whole system operated. As the head of the clan he directed every movement and operation within it. He set up regulations for working, for interchange of ideas and relations, for family relations, for raising of children, marriage, social and tribal activities and most of all the means by which the serenity and well- being of the group could be preserved.

With all that, the examples of the several patriarchs was the model for Masonic development. Lamech, Noah, Enoch, Moses and the rest, with their contributions to Masonic tradition and lore, paved the way for a permanent organization, based on these traditions and following closely the activities relative to preserving the steps by which Freemasonry or at least the fraternal associations at the time, were developed and made permanent. We need not be reminded of Enoch's underground crypt with its plate of gold and the inefiable Name thereon; Noah and the perservation of the symbolic elements during the flood; as well as the other well- known and well recognized patriarchs in whose footsteps we have followed, to give proper heed not only to those venerable persons, but more especially to try to picture the elements of the patriarchal system, and use them as a model upon which has been built systems, of like nature, and each of which has been a successive step forward, stone laid on stone, by which we have evolved what we now call Freemasonry.

ANOTHER FOURTH

It has often been said that U. S. citizens have lived in a condition of freedom so long they have forgotten the evils of oppression. We take for granted the individual worth ofa of a person, equal rights under the law, acceptance of government as a protector and referee for all citizens and the presumption of innocence until proven guilty.

With the approach of another Fourth of July, the words of Dr. John A. Howard, president of Rockford College, as he views these matters, should have a special meaning:

"Having grown up with these concepts as the conditions of our living, we cannot comprehend, we cannot register upon how revolutionary they were when first proclaimed, nor do we realize how they contrast with what exists in the police state nations, nor how they differ from contemporary democracies that carry still the deep -rooted psychological mind -set of their monarchical heritage. The existence of a House of Lords and a House of Commons maintains the message that the common man, even risen to the highest position, remains a commoner. By contrast, in our country, with our inheritance of assumptions, the phrase 'second -class citizen' very rightly stirs indignation . . . ." We should think about these things on this Fourth of July, 1970.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF CONGRESS

The decline of the exercise of responsibility of the U.S. Congress in the past quarter of a century has been one of the deplorable chapters in our history. All to frequently we have seen the Supreme Court and the office of the Presidency usurp the powers and decisions of the legislative body, the agency that is rightfully the closest to the people. The wheels of the democratic machinery of this Republic should be set in motion first by the Congress. It has the power and the duty of making the laws of the land, of appropriating money for the operation of government and of acting as watchdog on all agencies.

Much of the law- making is now done by the Supreme Court through judicial decision, often by split, 4— 5, margins. The men and women who founded the nation never intended it that way. Congress in effect has relinquished its power to decide on war or peace. This has brought us to some dangerous dilemmas, as witness the Korean conflict and the fiasco in Vietnam. A Gulf of Tonkin Resolution should never be allowed to happen again. It gave the executive branch carte blanche power to wage war in Asia, and the administrations that used it had neither the foresight nor the determination to win. We are extricating ourselves but is not exactly with honor.

The General Accounting Office, an agency of the Congress, has done a good job of exposing fiscal irresponsibility but that is not enough. The various committees of Congress should resume their roles as watchdogs, then ferret out corruption in all government agencies. The voters who name their own representatives should insist, yes, demand, that the Senate and the House of Representatives again become our primary voice in government. HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Buried in Justice Department files is evidence that its spokesman didn't tell the truth about White House intervention in a landmark anti- pollution case.

The case was brought last year against Armco Steel Company, which was ordered by a federal judge to stop dumping toxic wastes into the Houston, Tex., ship channel. After the company appealed to President Nixon, the Justice Department abruptly negotiated a settlement more favorable to Armco.

The backstage wirepulling was handled by White House aide Peter "The Fixer" Flanigan.

But the Justice Department claimed it had received no direct pressure from the White House. This was the testimony of then- Assistant Attorney General Shiro Kashiwa, who recently was appointed to the Court of Claims.

His testimony is disputed, however, by a memo we have obtained from the department's files. Two days after Armco's appeal to the White House, the memo indicates, Flanigan's office was in touch with Kashiwa. He, in turn, directed a section chief, Martin Green, to work out the settlement terms with White House aides John Glancy and George Crawford in Flanigan's office.

Green dictated a memo to the files, dated Sept. 30, 1971, describing his contacts with the White House. Some of the names, typed up phonetically, are misspelled. Here, however, are excerpts from Green's incriminating memo:

Revealing Memo

"A little after 7 p.m. last night," he began, "in accordance with a phone call received from Mr. Kashiwa, I called Mr. Glanzie (sic) and George Crawford at the White House to answer their questions about the Armco case.

"They told me they had received a call from Mr. Verity (William Verity), the president of the Armco Steel Company, who told them that he would have to close down the plant in light of the Judge's decision on the Armco case. Mr. Glanzie and Mr. Crawford said that the President does not want plants closed down and more unemployment created, and they asked why we had brought the suit to close down the plant.

"I said that we did not want to close down the plant either, and that we had heard, in fact, that the plant would be able to operate without firing anybody. I further said that with Armco, as with our other defendants in Refuse Act cases, we had tried to negotiate a phased schedule of pollution abatement in order not to suddenly disrupt their operation.

"I pointed out that Armco had chosen not to negotiate, because it thought it would win the case in court, and that now that it had lost, it was faced with the direction of the Judge to stop discharging immediately. Mr. Glanzie and Mr. Crawford said that something would have to be worked out whereby we join with Armco in requesting the Judge to stay the execution of his judgment. They said that they would call me back.

"At 8:30 p.m., Mr. Glanzie and Mr. Crawford called back and said they have been in discussion with Mr. Verity and Mr. Flannagan (sic), and had decided that if this would meet with the approval of EPA, the government should go before the Judge and join with Armco in a request for a 60- day stay of the Judge's decision. During this time, Armco would attempt to secure from the appropriate local agency a permit which would authorize it to construct an incineration system and make from that system the necessary discharges into the air . . . I said I would inform Mr. Kashiwa of this proposed arrangement, and I there-after called Mr. Kashiwa and briefly summarized the foregoing."

This amazing memo not only reveals how corporate fatcats are able to fix cases in the backrooms of the White House; it also proves that Kashiwa misled Congressmen when he testified about the case on Capitol Hill. At the hearing, Rep. Henry Reuss, D—Wis., who knew of Flanigan's intervention at EPA, confronted Kashiwa.

"When the president of Armco, " snapped Reuss, "comes around to Peter Flanigan or John Doe in the White House with regard to a piece of pending litigation, he should be thrown out on his ear, no matter how much he has contributed in campaign funds. . . This is akin to a 'fix'."

"Well, nobidy fixed anything in my office," retorted Kashiwa. Contrary to the evidence in the memo, he emphasized that the Justice Department dealt only with EPA, not the White House.

Both Glancy and Crawford, no longer with the White House, acknowledged to us that they had been in touch with the Justice Department on the Armco case. Glancy told us, to the best of his memory, that he had met with Kashiwa. Crawford said he couldn't recall the names of the people he contacted in the Justice Deartment.

Verity said his company had been caught in a aqueeze between state and federal authorities. He had appealed to the White House, he said, to prevent a shutdown of his Texas plant. He acknowledged that he and other Armco executives have contributed to the GOP campaign chest. By corporate standards, however, their donations haven't been excessive.

Martin Green, who wrote the embarrassing memo, told us simply: "I have nothing to say." HIs superior, Assistant Attorney General Kent Frizzell, said he had read the memo and couldn't comment on it. But as for the Armco settlement, he said: "I am proud of the results achieved and obtained."

Judge Kashiwa, reached in his chambers, responded: "I just can't remember the details. My testimony up on Capitol Hill was the whole of it."

AND A TIME FOR THANKS

Here and there in this nation there are people who have little to give thanks about, or so they think. There are good reasons — a recent death in the family, illness, poverty and squalor, a broken marriage, the part and parcel of the tribulations of life. There are the lonely aged in nursing homes, the soldiers far from home, the retarded child who cannot comprehend Thanksgiving. All of these exist.

But this secular American celebration is in truth a thanksgiving to God, and those who know Him will give thanks whatever their condition or situation.

The day was set aside to commemorate what you might call the first foreigners to colonize this country, and the survival of a few of them. It was 1621 when Gov. William Bradford of the Plymouth Colony proclaimed a day of thanksgiving. It was not a time of joy, because half of the colony had died of starvation, illness and cold the previous winter.

But the hardy ones had made a sufficient harvest through the next summer and fall, and in the age-old custom they came together to make a festival affair simply because the good Earth had sustained them.

For the modern day artist Norman Rockwell probably summed up Thanksgiving as well as anyone. Those of us old enough should remember his painting done in 1951. A grandmother and a child are seated in a truck stop cafe, caught in the glancing rays of a midday sun, as they bow their heads and say grace over a Thanksgiving lunch. There is no cornucopia. All the humility and thankfulness of man for whatever humble sustenance he has are there.

Most of us in America have more material goods than we can say grace over. Despite the tears we shed over taxes and high prices, few of us can really feel what it was like to give thanks for enough food to keep a body alive. Malnutrition we may have in pockets of the country, but food we have in abundance.

This country has been good to Americans. Its soil, its climate, its resources have made us strong, healthy, well- cared for, and perhaps sometimes a little too proud of ourselves. Because we did not do it all ourselves. It was simply there, and we took it.

God gave it. And that is why we, just as the Pilgrims of Plymouth did, should give thanks today.

PERSON'S RETURN

It looks as if the long-awaited return of Juan Domingo Peron to Argentina, the country he ruled as virtual dictator for nine years, will finally take place on Friday, Nov. 17. On that day a chartered airliner is scheduled to bring Peron, now aged 77, and his wife, Isabel, to Buenos Aires from Rome. Press reports have indicated that the preserved body of Peron's former wife, Eva, also will be aboard.

It is always possible that Peron will change his mind at the last minute; past reports of his return have turned out to be false alarms. But the latest announcement of his plans seems solidly grounded in fact rather than hope. The aging dictator's travel schedule worked out in the course of talks in Spain between him and his supporters. An Alitalia plane already has been booked for "Operation Return," and arrangements have been made for bodyguards at the Rome airport and aboard the flight. Peron, sometimes derided for cowardice, seems determined to carry the operation through no matter what happens.

In a message to Hector Campora, head of the Justicialista Party, Peron said he hoped that his return would bring "peace and understanding" to his troubled country. He urged his supporters -- who account for one-third or more of Argentina's voters -- to greet him "in an atmosphere of peace and calm." That may be easier said than done. The powerful General Confederation of Labor, whose 3.5 million members are staunchly Peronist, has declared Nov. 17 a national holiday. Their welcome- home demonstration could well get out of hand, especially if Eva Peron's remains are returned to Argentine soil.

But even if Peron received a restrained welcome, political tension in Argentina is certain to mount. The Justicialista Party has chosen him as its candidate in next March's presidential election. However, the national electorial tribunal on Nov. 1 upheld the validity of a government decree barring his candidacy. The decree, issued last July, required all presidential hopefuls to have taken up residence in Argentina by Aug. 25. Peronist lawyers contend that the decree was unconstitutional.

In exile since his overthrow in 1955, Peron tried to come back to Argentina six years ago. But he got only as far as Rio de Janeiro, where Brazilian authorities forced him to return to Spain. It still is not clear whether Peron intends to settle permanently in his native country or just pay a visit. Campora says: "It could be for a few days or for good. But it will not be for a few hours."

PREACHING FROM THE AUDIENCE

Everybody in the business world knows that there are good days and bad days, and irritable, unpleasant customers and prospects are part of the game.

The important thing to remember is this: don't take it personally. The customer isn't irritated at you as a person. He's irritated at you as a representative of your company. So don't get riled up. Just act your role and keep your personal feelings out of it.

The second thing is this: don't try to argue with him (or her) or contradict him--regardless of whether he is right or wrong--until he has finished blowing off steam and calmed down. Just be a concerned, interested, sympathetic listener.

An angry man (or woman) doesn't want to be reasoned with. He has developed a full head of steam and he isn't going to be satisfied until he blows it. So let him! After he has gotten it off his chest he'll feel better. Then you can start to talk things over sensibly.

If you and your company are wrong, admit it promptly. Do what you can to make amends and set the matter straight.

If the customer is in the wrong, be careful! Don't take it upon yourself to tell him so in so many words. Because he won't like it a bit. Nobody likes to be wrong, especially when he has blown his top and made a big fuss. It makes him feel like a sap.

Just discuss the matter calmly until he begins to see for himself that maybe he was at least partly to blame. Don't let him take all the blame--even if he deserves it. For the sake of good future relations try to take part of the responsibility off his shoulders. Try to think of something you can do that will show how sympathetic you are, something that will restore his feeling of goodwill toward you and your company. What's the use of winning arguments and losing customers?

It's always a temptation, of course, to tell an ornery customer to take his business and go jump in the lake. There's a lot more satisfaction, though, in taming the beast. It's more profitable, too.

"Yes, I heard you," said Mike, "but you told me I am going to die and this is no time to antagonize anybody."

STRIKES CURB FARM
SALES OUTSIDE U. S.

Strikes caused losses in the hundreds of millions of dollars to American farmers from reduced 1971 sales, lower prices, and also from reduced future sales as buyers turn to other supply sources for the commodities they need, according to Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz.

Agricultural exports increased six per cent in calendar year 1971, compared to a 22 per cent increase in 1970. The increase gave agriculture a favorable trade balance of $1.9 billion in a year when the total U. S. trade balance had a deficit of $2 billion.

"We are naturally very pleased at achieving this record level in the face of a very difficult export situation because of the strikes," the Secretary said, "but we are also disappointed because it would have been a great deal higher if our farm products had been able to move freely to foreign markets."

WHEN THE BANDWAGONS ROLL

Thousands of acres on Connecticut, New York and New Jery have been infested by insects. Forests are threatened and the people of some regions were allegedly living" . . in a state of emergency" during the summer of 1971. Suspicion is growing that the ban on pesticide use has been at least partly responsible for what has been happening. Commenting editorially, BARRON'S National business and Financial Weekly, reports that, "In the northern part of New Jersey, which stopped the aerial spraying of DDT over half a decade ago, the gypsy moth for the second straight year has damaged thousands of acres of woodland. . . In one state after another to ban the pesticide---at least a dozen now have made the move - -strange things, ranging from the slaughter of honey-bees to the accidental loss of human life from highly toxic substitutes, have been happening. Indeed, throughout the U. S.. .lately have come reports of frightening outbreaks of malaria. Though fragmentary and scattered, the evidence should give reasonable men pause."

It could be that the bandwagon rush to ban pesticides will boomerang just as did the wholesale condemnation of the use of phosphates in detergents.

TIME FOR COMPROMISE

The adamancy of the antienergy environmentalist was the subject of an Address by the president of a major oil company. He made a good point when he said. "Compromise appears to be the only answer to the question . . .It is. . .a time when we must work towards an acceptable tradeoff between energy and the environment."

The case for a compromise is unanswerable. "It is estimated". the oil executive observed, "that our population will increase about 17 percent by 1985. At the same time, government and industry are forecasting that energy consumption will increase 100 percent." He explained the disproportion by noting, "We know that the people who are going to drastically affect the energy demands between now and 1985 are already born. They are the products of the baby boom of the late Forties and early Fifties. In the next few years they will move into the 25-35 age group, buying their first homes, their first new cars and starting their families. In short they will be consuming more energy." In addition, the disadvantaged members of society must continue to improve their standards of living, and "these improvements will require more energy consumption."

Who is qualified to decree that the disadvantaged and the young shall not be admitted to the comforts of an energy based society? Who could enforce such a decree even if they so wished? Obviously, the answer, is compromise. There is no turning back from the obligation to meet future energy demands anymore than there can be a rejection of the need to preserve a liveable environment.

ORIGINS OF FREEMASONRY
TRACED BACK TO MOSES,
ENOCH AND NOAH

It would be totally wrong to classify the old patriarchal religion of the ancients as the complete forerunner of Freemasonry, yet it would be equally in error to deny that our patriarchal ancestors did not make a valuable and lasting contribution.

The patriarchal religions of ancient times, the Hebrews—Moses, Enoch, Noah, Lamech and others, represented a system of togetherness under male dominance and supervision that was in its own way, a great fore- concept of the guilds and operative masons of the Middle Ages, in that the rules, regulations and patterns of life were of similar nature, formed a pattern by which Freemasonry, as we know it today, was based.

The patriarchs were supreme heads of the clan, laid down the law, formulated living procedure, and governed, settling all disputes and weighing all activities. So it is that this- the patriarchy- is the model on which the development of Freemasonry is based.

Developing this idea a little more, we find that our patriarchs are steeped in Masonry. Enoch, Lamech, Moses, have had Masonic legends and traditions built around them which form the basis for some of our ceremonies and rites, and these men serve as symbols for our estimate of Masonry. We cannot, nor must not underestimate the influence both of the venerable patriarchs themselves and of their systems of life.

In studying origins of Freemasonry we study trends and similiarities. The system of patriarchal government started with the Venerable Patriarch himself. He it was who made the laws, he it was who stipulated the method under which the whole system operated. As the head of the clan he directed every movement and operation within it. He set up regulations for working, for interchange of ideas and relations, for family relations, for raising of children, marriage, social and tribal activities and most of all the means by which the serenity and well- being of the group could be preserved.

With all that, the examples of the several patriarchs was the model for Masonic development. Lamech, Noah, Enoch, Moses and the rest, with their contributions to Masonic tradition and lore, paved the way for a permanent organization, based on these traditions and following closely the activities relative to preserving the steps by which Freemasonry or at least the fraternal associations at the time, were developed and made permanent. We need not be reminded of Enoch's underground crypt with its plate of gold and the ineffable Name thereon; Noah and the perservation of the symbolic elements during the flood; as well as the other well- known and well recognized patriarchs in whose footsteps we have followed, to give proper heed not only to those venerable persons, but more especially to try to picture the elements of the patriarchal system, and use them as a model upon which has been built systems, of like nature, and each of which has been a successive step forward, stone laid on stone, by which we have evolved what we now call Freemasonry.

ANOTHER FOURTH

It has often been said that U. S. citizens have lived in a condition of freedom so long they have forgotten the evils of oppression. We take for granted the individual worth ofa of a person, equal rights under the law, acceptance of government as a protector and referee for all citizens and the presumption of innocence until proven guilty.

With the approach of another Fourth of July, the words of Dr. John A. Howard, president of Rockford College, as he views these matters, should have a special meaning:

"Having grown up with these concepts as the conditions of our living, we cannot comprehend, we cannot register upon how revolutionary they were when first proclaimed, nor do we realize how they contrast with what exists in the police state nations, nor how they differ from contemporary democracies that carry still the deep -rooted psychological mind -set of their monarchical heritage. The existence of a House of Lords and a House of Commons maintains the message that the common man, even risen to the highest position, remains a commoner. By contrast, in our country, with our inheritance of assumptions, the phrase 'second -class citizen' very rightly stirs indignation . . . ." We should think about these things on this Fourth of July, 1970.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF CONGRESS

The decline of the exercise of responsibility of the U.S. Congress in the past quarter of a century has been one of the deplorable chapters in our history. All to frequently we have seen the Supreme Court and the office of the Presidency usurp the powers and decisions of the legislative body, the agency that is rightfully the closest to the people. The wheels of the democratic machinery of this Republic should be set in motion first by the Congress. It has the power and the duty of making the laws of the land, of appropriating money for the operation of government and of acting as watchdog on all agencies.

Much of the law- making is now done by the Supreme Court through judicial decision, often by split, 4— 5, margins. The men and women who founded the nation never intended it that way. Congress in effect has relinquished its power to decide on war or peace. This has brought us to some dangerous dilemmas, as witness the Korean conflict and the fiasco in Vietnam. A Gulf of Tonkin Resolution should never be allowed to happen again. It gave the executive branch carte blanche power to wage war in Asia, and the administrations that used it had neither the foresight nor the determination to win. We are extricating ourselves but is not exactly with honor.

The General Accounting Office, an agency of the Congress, has done a good job of exposing fiscal irresponsibility but that is not enough. The various committees of Congress should resume their roles as watchdogs, then ferret out corruption in all government agencies. The voters who name their own representatives should insist, yes, demand, that the Senate and the House of Representatives again become our primary voice in government. HLH

Otherwise, why should it become increasingly difficult to tell the sexes apart?

When everyone today dresses, talks and acts alike, how can this be done? Well, mistakes are always possible, but there are still some clues as to how to tell the sexes apart.

For example:

If it can put a sock on while standing on one leg, it's a man. If it has to sit on the edge of the bed and then fall over backward to struggle into its stockings, it's a woman.

If it bores you by always wanting to tell you its dreams, it's a her. If it bores you by always wanting to brag about its hangovers, it's a him.

If it says it wears the pants in the family, put it down as the papa. If it actually wears the pants in the family, put it down as the mama.

Can it drive better while sitting in the front seat of a car? Dad once more. Can it drive better while sitting in the back seat? Mom again.

Does it wear its dentures at all times because it can't stand the thought of being seen with them out? Dear old Grandma! Does it sometimes take its dentures out and leave them lying anywhere around the house because it hates to wear them anyway? Dear old Grandpa!

Does it believe that everything will be better and more glamorous after marriage? That's the prospective bride. Does it prove to her in time that marriage doesn't make quite all that much difference? That's the bridegroom.

In an emergency, of course, you can always ask the father or mother of a person what the sex of their offspring is. If they can't agree, you might be wise to drop the whole matter.

After all, there is a lot more to human life than sex—it says right here. All you have to do is to find out what that could possibly be.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — Buried in Justice Department files is evidence that its spokesman didn't tell the truth about White House intervention in a landmark anti- pollution case.

The case was brought last year against Armco Steel Company, which was ordered by a federal judge to stop dumping toxic wastes into the Houston, Tex., ship channel. After the company appealed to President Nixon, the Justice Department abruptly negotiated a settlement more favorable to Armco.

The backstage wirepulling was handled by White House aide Peter "The Fixer" Flanigan.

But the Justice Department claimed it had received no direct pressure from the White House. This was the testimony of then- Assistant Attorney General Shiro Kashiwa, who recently was appointed to the Court of Claims.

His testimony is disputed, however, by a memo we have obtained from the department's files. Two days after Armco's appeal to the White House, the memo indicates, Flanigan's office was in touch with Kashiwa. He, in turn, directed a section chief, Martin Green, to work out the settlement terms with White House aides John Glancy and George Crawford in Flanigan's office.

Green dictated a memo to the files, dated Sept. 30, 1971, describing his contacts with the White House. Some of the names, typed up phonetically, are misspelled. Here, however, are excerpts from Green's incriminating memo:

Revealing Memo

"A little after 7 p.m. last night," he began, "in accordance with a phone call received from Mr. Kashiwa, I called Mr. Glanzie (sic) and George Crawford at the White House to answer their questions about the Armco case.

"They told me they had received a call from Mr. Verity (William Verity), the president of the Armco Steel Company, who told them that he would have to close down the plant in light of the Judge's decision on the Armco case. Mr. Glanzie and Mr. Crawford said that the President does not want plants closed down and more unemployment created, and they asked why we had brought the suit to close down the plant.

"I said that we did not want to close down the plant either, and that we had heard, in fact, that the plant would be able to operate without firing anybody. I further said that with Armco, as with our other defendants in Refuse Act cases, we had tried to negotiate a phased schedule of pollution abatement in order not to suddenly disrupt their operation.

"I pointed out that Armco had chosen not to negotiate, because it thought it would win the case in court, and that now that it had lost, it was faced with the direction of the Judge to stop discharging immediately. Mr. Glanzie and Mr. Crawford said that something would have to be worked out whereby we join with Armco in requesting the Judge to stay the execution of his judgment. They said that they would call me back.

"At 8:30 p.m., Mr. Glanzie and Mr. Crawford called back and said they have been in discussion with Mr. Verity and Mr. Flannagan (sic), and had decided that if this would meet with the approval of EPA, the government should go before the Judge and join with Armco in a request for a 60- day stay of the Judge's decision. During this time, Armco would attempt to secure from the appropriate local agency a permit which would authorize it to construct an incineration system and make from that system the necessary discharges into the air . . . I said I would inform Mr. Kashiwa of this proposed arrangement, and I there-after called Mr. Kashiwa and briefly summarized the foregoing."

This amazing memo not only reveals how corporate fatcats are able to fix cases in the backrooms of the White House; it also proves that Kashiwa misled Congressmen when he testified about the case on Capitol Hill. At the hearing, Rep. Henry Reuss, D—Wis., who knew of Flanigan's intervention at EPA, confronted Kashiwa.

"When the president of Armco, " snapped Reuss, "comes around to Peter Flanigan or John Doe in the White House with regard to a piece of pending litigation, he should be thrown out on his ear, no matter how much he has contributed in campaign funds. . . This is akin to a 'fix'."

"Well, nobidy fixed anything in my office," retorted Kashiwa. Contrary to the evidence in the memo, he emphasized that the Justice Department dealt only with EPA, not the White House.

Both Glancy and Crawford, no longer with the White House, acknowledged to us that they had been in touch with the Justice Department on the Armco case. Glancy told us, to the best of his memory, that he had met with Kashiwa. Crawford said he couldn't recall the names of the people he contacted in the Justice Deartment.

Verity said his company had been caught in a aqueeze between state and federal authorities. He had appealed to the White House, he said, to prevent a shutdown of his Texas plant. He acknowledged that he and other Armco executives have contributed to the GOP campaign chest. By corporate standards, however, their donations haven't been excessive.

Martin Green, who wrote the embarrassing memo, told us simply: "I have nothing to say." HIs superior, Assistant Attorney General Kent Frizzell, said he had read the memo and couldn't comment on it. But as for the Armco settlement, he said: "I am proud of the results achieved and obtained."

Judge Kashiwa, reached in his chambers, responded: "I just can't remember the details. My testimony up on Capitol Hill was the whole of it."

Drive Begins For Children Of Clerk

JEFFERSON CITY, MO. (AP) — Two Jefferson City bankers have begun a fund drive for the children of a night clerk who was shot and killed in a $400 robbery at the Holiday Inn on U. S. 54 west of here.

Smith Innocent Of Fragging

FT. ORD, CALIF. (AP) — Billy Dean Smith, free after being cleared of murder charges in the first "fragging" court-martial conducted in the United States, says he is "just lucky to be here."

The 24-year-old black from the Watts district of Los Angeles explained, "If the trial had been held in Vietnam, something would have happened very bad.

"Not everybody is lucky enough to have a trial," he told newsmen after his acquittal here Tuesday.

A military jury of two black and five white officers deliberated for five hours before finding Smith innocent of two charges each of murder and attempted murder and one charge of assault with intent to do bodily harm.

Dellwo died on the day he was scheduled to leave Vietnam.

The jury did convict Smith of assaulting a military policeman who arrested him shortly after the grenade explosion.

For that, Smith, who had been in confinement 20 months, was given a bad conduct discharge and reduced from private E-2 to private E-1, the lowest Army rank. He was given a 30-day leave in the custody of his family while the Army processes his discharge.

Despite an instruction by military Judge Col. Rawls H. Frazier against outbursts, some three dozen spectators let out a gasp of relief as the verdict was announced.

"I'm so happy God answered my prayers," said Smith's mother, Hazel Smith, 60, wiping tears from her eyes. "I'm glad my son is free."

Clayton Named Fund Chairman

NEW MADRID — Gene Clayton was named New Madrid Community Fund chairman and Mike Andrews, newly elected board member, vice chairman at a reorganizational meeting of the board of directors.

Mrs. Fern White continues as secretary-treasurer. Clayton succeeds E. M. (Hot) Phillips, who remains a member of the board.

New board members elected for three- year terms, in addition to Andrews, are Joe Hunter, Zoe O'Herin and Ralph Lewis. They replace Pierce Duncan, Larry Rost, Charles Hatley and Earl Andrews, whose terms expired.

The board will meet next week, Clayton said, to revise donor lists, set a goal, name participating agencies and announce a date for the fund drive.

Last year $4,000 was distributed to six agencies. Those receiving funds were New Madrid Youth Fund, $1,800; American Red Cross, $800; Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, $500 each; Salvation Army, $250 and Christian Braille Foundation, $150.

Sen. Eagleton Speaks On Demo Defeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton believes Sen. George McGovern "'was unfortunately and unfairly perceived as a radical" in the recent presidential election campaign and it was a major factor in his defeat.

In an interview in today's Washington Post, Eagleton said his own dismissal as McGovern.s running mate after past mental problems were disclosed was just "one rock" contributing to President Nixon's landslide victory over McGovern.

Holstien Breeders To Meet

CAE GIRARDEAU —Holstein breeders will meet from all over the state of Missouri at Holiday Inn Friday and Saturday, according to Harlan Hager of Gordonville, Southeast Missouri district president.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomson have just returned from Europe where they viewed first hand the workings of the Holstein-Friesian Service Export program.

The two- day annual meeting will begin Friday with registration and afternoon tours of four Holstein herds in the area. Also, the hospitality room will provide cheese and snacks for registered breeders, wives and friends.

In addition to the regular business meeting, tours will be held for the ladies at 10 a.m. Saturday. A ladies' luncheon will be held Saturday at the Carriage House. The hospitality room will open Saturday at 6:30 p.m., followed by the banquet at 7:30 p.m.

Burlison Speaks On House

DESOTO — Rep. Bill D. Burlison of Missouri's 10th Congressional District spoke to the Jefferson County Builders Association Tuesday night at the Suburbia Restaurant on the subject of federal government housing programs.

Burlison explained the various programs offered by Farmers Home Administration and Federal Housing Authority which are available to individuals and groups wishing to construct or purchase housing for personal use or for profit.

The congressman explained that most of the programs are desigend to assist low and moderate- income families and public and private non- profit organizations which help such families.

According to the Cape Girardeau lawmaker, Congress recently passed legislation which he co- sponsored to extend the authority of Farmers Home Administration in the field of rural housing.

Bank Appeals Decision

NEW MADRID — Bank of New Madrid is appealing the decision by H. Duane Pemberton, state commissioner of finance, to award a certificate of authority to Farmers Bank of Portageville to establish and maintain a facility in Marston, Sam L. Hunter, president of the New Madrid bank said today.

Both banks filed for the certificate, but the Portageville facility was awarded the document last Thursday.

BUXTON, England (AP) — Risks of armed robberies on banks are so high these days that clerks are entitled to danger money, says the president of the Bank Employers Union. At a conference in Derbyshire, Don Earl estimated the danger element in the job had trebled in recent years. "It is high time the public realized the increasing risks from raids that all bank men and women have to face," he says.

Fireman Called

DEXTER -- The fire department was called to a house at 618 North Mulberry St. at 12:39 a.m. today by city police officer Ralph Clark.

Extensive damage was done to the furnace and bathroom areas, and smoke and heat damaged the rest of the house.

The house is owned by Bill Clayton of Arizona, but was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Breedlove. Fire chief Al Banken reported that the couple had gone to Sikeston to eat after reporting to the police at 11:36 p.m. that a tape recorder had been taken from their home Tuesday.

Banken said further investigation of the fire is in progress.

Residents Only To Use Landfill

Beginning Dec. 1, only Sikeston residents will be allowed to dispose of refuse at the city sanitary landfill, according to City Manager Jim Huff.

Huff said the reason for the restriction was due to the increasing amount of garbage and the decreasing amount of space available.

Drive Begins For Children Of Clerk

JEFFERSON CITY, MO. (AP) — Two Jefferson City bankers have begun a fund drive for the children of a night clerk who was shot and killed in a $400 robbery at the Holiday Inn on U. S. 54 west of here.

Smith Innocent Of Fragging

FT. ORD, CALIF. (AP) — Billy Dean Smith, free after being cleared of murder charges in the first "fragging" court-martial conducted in the United States, says he is "just lucky to be here."

The 24-year-old black from the Watts district of Los Angeles explained, "If the trial had been held in Vietnam, something would have happened very bad.

"Not everybody is lucky enough to have a trial," he told newsmen after his acquittal here Tuesday.

A military jury of two black and five white officers deliberated for five hours before finding Smith innocent of two charges each of murder and attempted murder and one charge of assault with intent to do bodily harm.

Dellwo died on the day he was scheduled to leave Vietnam.

The jury did convict Smith of assaulting a military policeman who arrested him shortly after the grenade explosion.

For that, Smith, who had been in confinement 20 months, was given a bad conduct discharge and reduced from private E-2 to private E-1, the lowest Army rank. He was given a 30-day leave in the custody of his family while the Army processes his discharge.

Despite an instruction by military Judge Col. Rawls H. Frazier against outbursts, some three dozen spectators let out a gasp of relief as the verdict was announced.

"I'm so happy God answered my prayers,"said Smith's mother, Hazel Smith, 60, wiping tears from her eyes. "I'm glad my son is free."

Clayton Named Fund Chairman

NEW MADRID — Gene Clayton was named New Madrid Community Fund chairman and Mike Andrews, newly elected board member, vice chairman at a reorganizational meeting of the board of directors.

Mrs. Fern White continues as secretary-treasurer. Clayton succeeds E. M. (Hot) Phillips, who remains a member of the board.

New board members elected for three- year terms, in addition to Andrews, are Joe Hunter, Zoe O'Herin and Ralph Lewis. They replace Pierce Duncan, Larry Rost, Charles Hatley and Earl Andrews, whose terms expired.

The board will meet next week, Clayton said, to revise donor lists, set a goal, name participating agencies and announce a date for the fund drive.

Last year $4,000 was distributed to six agencies. Those receiving funds were New Madrid Youth Fund, $1,800; American Red Cross, $800; Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, $500 each; Salvation Army, $250 and Christian Braille Foundation, $150.

Chism Arrested

Larry Chism, 1015 Applegate, was arrested Tuesday and charged with maintaining a public nuisance.

Police said he was ordered to clean up junk in his yard. After seven days , police said, it appeared that more junk was accumulating, so the order for his arrest was issued.

Earnest Green, 206 Felker, was arrested for public intoxication.

BLADE OF LIGHT
by Don Carpenter
(Avon N441/$.95
189 pp.)

His name is Semple, and he has just been released from an institution for the criminally insane. He has spent eighteen years there, committed at the age of 17 for the crime of murder. Semple, born illegitimate and neglected as a boy, has known nothing but torment and abuse every day of his life. Now, hardened and bitter at the age of 35, he is in search of his manhood. But how does one find manhood in a hostile society that treats such people as outcasts, as creatures something less than human? His answer is Rosemary, a young woman who isn't afraid to probe beneath his course surface. But, just when it seems that he is about to rearrange the shattered fragments of his life, Semple's past comes back to haunt him, and, in one violent moment that will finish him forever, the circle of events fulfills itself.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thurman

Holman-Thurman

Miss Carole Holman and Thomas Thurman exchanged wedding vows on Nov. 3 at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Thurman, 209 Edwards St., with the Rev. Vaughn Marsten, cousin of the groom, performing the double-ring ceremony.

The new Mrs. Thurman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Holman, 421 Pam St.

The bride wore an ivory-white, princess- style dress of polyester knit with long sleeves accented by full, over-the-hand, lattice cuffs. She carried a bouquet of ivory and yellow baby mums.

Miss Kathy Thurman, sister of the groom, served as the bride's only attendant, and Thurman was attended by Alan Childers.

Famous Women To Be Honored

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — This Finger Lakes village, site of the first Women's Rights Convention in 1848, soon will be home to a national women's hall of fame.

A National Honors Committee of 25 women and men has been mulling over a list of 30 prominent American women of the past and present who have been nominated for enshrinement.

Mrs. George M. Bantuvanis, president of the Hall of Fame corporation, said, plans are to keep the identities of the honored women a secret until the Hall of Fame is opened officially.

Initially, the hall will be housed in a campus building at Eisenhower College, a liberal arts school in Seneca Falls.

The corporation hopes eventually to construct its own building on land the college already has agreed to donate, Mrs. Bantuvanis said, and aid from foundations and individuals is being sought.

Book Review

BLADE OF LIGHT

by Don Carpenter
(Avon N441/$.95
189 pp.)

His name is Semple, and he has just been released from an institution for the criminally insane. He has spent eighteen years there, committed at the age of 17 for the crime of murder. Semple, born illegitimate and neglected as a boy, has known nothing but torment and abuse every day of his life. Now, hardened and bitter at the age of 35, he is in search of his manhood. But how does one find manhood in a hostile society that treats such people as outcasts, as creatures something less than human? His answer is Rosemary, a young woman who isn't afraid to probe beneath his course surface. But, just when it seems that he is about to rearrange the shattered fragments of his life, Semple's past comes back to haunt him, and, in one violent moment that will finish him forever, the circle of events fulfills itself.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thurman

Holman-Thurman

Miss Carole Holman and Thomas Thurman exchanged wedding vows on Nov. 3 at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Thurman, 209 Edwards St., with the Rev. Vaughn Marsten, cousin of the groom, performing the double-ring ceremony.

The new Mrs. Thurman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Holman, 421 Pam St.

The bride wore an ivory-white, princess- style dress of polyester knit with long sleeves accented by full, over-the-hand, lattice cuffs. She carried a bouquet of ivory and yellow baby mums.

Miss Kathy Thurman, sister of the groom, served as the bride's only attendant, and Thurman was attended by Alan Childers.

Famous Women To Be Honored

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — This Finger Lakes village, site of the first Women's Rights Convention in 1848, soon will be home to a national women's hall of fame.

A National Honors Committee of 25 women and men has been mulling over a list of 30 prominent American women of the past and present who have been nominated for enshrinement.

Mrs. George M. Bantuvanis, president of the Hall of Fame corporation, said, plans are to keep the identities of the honored women a secret until the Hall of Fame is opened officially.

Initially, the hall will be housed in a campus building at Eisenhower College, a liberal arts school in Seneca Falls.

The corporation hopes eventually to construct its own building on land the college already has agreed to donate, Mrs. Bantuvanis said, and aid from foundations and individuals is being sought.

Ann Landers

Doctor's Wife Gets Mad At Neighbors Who Call "After Hours"

Dear Ann Landers: I think the Women's Libbers have bitten off more than they can chew. Their problems are just beginning. I heard today that several women walked off the job because three females were asked to grease machinery, which required them to work lying on their backs for several hours at a stretch. Another group of women balked at lifting 150- pound drums of coffee beans. They said it was a "dirty trick," and refused to follow orders.

It seems to me that if women want equal pay and the same privileges that men get they should be willing to do a man's work-- either that or admit they are inferior and keep their traps shut. What do you think, Ann?--- M.C. Pig

Dear Pig: I think I'll keep my trap shut until I find out what really happened. There have already been some conflicting reports.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a physician. Dedicated and conscientious. He came home tonight exhausted. It was an especially trying day.

No sooner had we seated ourselves at the dinner table when he received a telephone call from a woman who lives in our neighborhood. She's had this "funny" pain for about three months. She decided it would be better to call him after office hours so he could run over. She didn't want to "interfere with his day."

I was so mad I could have chewed nails. So was he, but he went anyway. Can you make some comment?--- M.D.'s Wife

Dear Wife: No: I'm also chewing nails.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter for the mothers of daughters who are 13 or 14, look like 18 or 19 and act like 25.

At this very moment a good friend of mine, a really good guy just back from Vietnam (and hungrier than he should have been) is sweating out a charge of statutory rape. Some little sex kitten made him a straight- out proposition right in her own living room. She said her folks were out of town so he took her up on it.

About 2:00 a.m. the girl's parents came home and caught them in the act. The girl yelled, "Rape!" and her father called the police. They took her to the hospital for an examination and the cops took the guy to the station.

The real villain here is not the boy or "Miss Round Heels" but the mother for allowing her 14- year- old daughter (she lied and said she was 19) to get herself up like a tramp and have free run of an empty house. I would like to see this letter in the Chicago Sun-Times because it seems there is more of this sort of thing in Chicago than anywhere else. Thank you, Ann.--- Disgusted With It

Dear G.: I agree, the mother is to blame. Usually she's an unhappy woman who wasn't very popular and hopes to get a vicarious thrill through her daughter's escapades. Such pathetic women can't wait for the kids to grow up so they can start training them to be man traps.

As for Chicago having more of "that sort of thing" than other cities, I doubt it. My mail indicates this affliction is not a matter of geography.

How much do you know about pot, LSD, cocaine, speed, meth, uppers and downers, glue and heroin? Are all these drugs dangerous? Get Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill plus a LONG, self-addressed envelope (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago Ill. 60654.

The first Cesarian operation performed in the U.S., was in 1794 near Staunton, Va. by Dr. Jesse Bennett. The patient was his wife.

In the past 45 years more than 775 billion cans of food have been produced and out of that number only four deaths have occurred from botulism.

Traditionally, it has been the practice among parents in Singapore that daughters should receive only enough education to enable them to read and write.

Every five minutes of every day about one million sandwiches are consumed.

The Public Health Service reported 10.9 suicides per 100,000 population in 1969.

Employer Can Be Fined If Worker Spits On Floor

WASHINGTON— While many, if not all, employers, would find it most repugnant for an employe to spit on the floor of a garage, factory or other premises, if there is such an occurence when one of the Labor Department agents is around, a very substantial fine can be imposed, not on the offending employe, but on the employer.

This is one of the provisions contained in the "amended" regulations issued by the Department of Labor under the Occupational Safety and Health Act, in the Federal Register of Oct. 18.

Before the Congress adjourned, the nation's independent business people, largely through the National Federation of Independent Business, protested the alleged "highhanded Gestapo" tactics of Labor Department agents in connection with the law. The Labor Department said it would change some of its rulings, but the new "amended" regulations have the same existing stipulations, federation researchers find.

The spitting prohibition is found on page 22234 of this publication of very limited circulation. Not only is the employer financially responsible for his employes spitting on the floor, but he is also financially liable if any employe's personal tools, such as carried by carpenters, are found below rigidly prescribed standards.

On the same page of the Federal Register, it also provides that in any office or premises where both sexes are employed, there must be separate toilet facilities. The federation has received reports that this edict has been invoked in two- person offices where a man and his wife were the only people working in the premises.

In places where 10 women are employed, a separate space must be provided as a retiring room with space allocated for this purpose equivalent to the square footage of three twin beds up to 100 employes and up to the space equivalent to six twin beds for over that number up to 250 employes.

It is also against Labor Department regulations to put ice into the water coolers, and all toilet cubicles must be provided with coat hangers.

The Department of Labor regulations also provide for the manner in which open- pit privies may be constructed for non- permanent work sites such as encountered in construction and agricultural work.

These regulations will probably run head on into national and state parks and forest services where outdoor privies are provided at campsites, as it is stipulated that no such facility can be closer than 100 feet from any body of open water, and not then if there is evidence of underground seepage of ground water toward the stream or lake.

In the last session of Congress, as complaints poured in over the regulations developed on the administration of OSHA, Labor Department representatives told the Congressmen they would eliminate certain of these regulations such as ice in the water coolers, coat hangers in the toilet cubicles, separate facilities in small offices and other items. Presumably, a majority of the congressmen believed these representations as Congress adjourned without amending the law to take these powers away from the Labor Department. But immediately following the adjournment of Congress, the Labor Department published the "amended" regulations which do not depart from the original ones.

Bank Interest Rate Paid By Business Dips

SAN MATEO, Calif.— Showing the biggest d[illegible] in two years, the averag[illegible]nk interest rate paid by small [illegible]d independent business on a traditional basis, dropped to 7.4 per cent in October, according to the continuous field survey of the National Federation of Independent Business.

The average national interest rate held for four straight months at 7.7 per cent, from the year's high in January of 7.8 per cent. A year ago the average rate was 8.6 per cent.

The biggest drop is shown in the Mountain states where it fell from 8.2 per cent in September to 7.7 per cent. In the Pacific states, which for long had shown the highest rates, the average is now donw to 7.7 per cent, reflecting a drop from a flat 8 per cent the previous month.

New England has the lowest rate with 6.8 per cent, followed by the mid— Atlantic states with a flat 7 per cent. The south Atlantic and west south central states both show an average rate of 7.4 per cent; the west north central, 7.6 per cent; the east north central, 7.3 per cent; and the deep south, 7.1 per cent.

Business People Favor Legal Lotteries

SAN MATEO, Calif.— Old attitudes toward legalized gambling appear to be changing, and most surprisingly among the independent business people.

In some of the special state surveys currently being conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business, it is being shown that the independent business people favor either a state- operated lottery or a pari- mutuel system on horse track betting or, in some cases, both.

Some states, of course, have long permitted pari- mutuel betting and some states such as New Hampshire and New York have state- conducted lotteries as a means of easing the burden on the taxpayer.

The state surveys taken so far show that in Ohio, 71 per cent of the independent business people are in favor of the state operating lotteries.

In Oregon, where the people have long had a reputation for conservatism, 73 per cent of the independent business people are voting in the NFIB poll for state- conducted lotteries.

Texas apparently is still doubtful on this matter of legalized gambling. While 63 per cent of the independent business people feel there should be pari- mutuel betting, only 51 per cent are in favor of the Lone Star state setting up lotteries. In Georgia, 51 per cent are in favor of pari- mutuel betting, but only 40 per cent favor state- supported lotteries.

The question of legalized gambling with the state taking a cut out of the wagers has long been a debatable issue among independent business people. Where pari- mutuel betting is permitted at the track, there is often registered complaints that the people lose their money on the bangtails and become delinquent in the payment of their bills.

There has also been complaints of absenteeism from work during the racing meets as people go to the track to place their bets, inasmuch as states which permit horse track betting are most zealous in cracking down on bookies, largely due to the fact that the state does not collect its percentage from these bets.

About two years ago, New York State met this issue head- on by opening state- operated betting parlors permitting people to place legal bets on the horses without taking the time from work to go out to the tracks.

Although in California pari- mutuel betting at the track has been legal for many years, political leaders are adamant against any extension of gambling on the basis of public morality. Illegal "bookies" are vigorously prosecuted. While many California law enforcement officials agree legalized bookmaking could cut down on job absenteeism, they feel such a move would open the Golden Gate to the crime syndicates.

Lansky Must Stand Trial

MIAMI (AP)— Meyer Lansky, the reputed underworld financial wizard, has been ordered to stand trail Jan. 19, 1973, on criminal contempt of court charges.

U.S. District Court Judge James L. King on Monday set the date for trial on the charge returned by a grand jury after Lansky failed to appear in Miami in response to a subpoena delivered to him in Israel in June 1971.

Lansky returned to the United States last Tuesday after Israel ordered him to leave and he could not find a country that would accept him. FBI agents arrested him when his plane arrived here.

He entered Mt. Sinai Hospital the day after his arrival for treatment of a heart ailment.

Oregon State defeated Duke, 20 to 16, in the Jan. 1, 1942, Rose Bowl football game, played for the first and last time at Durham, N.C.

Soviet Consumer Goods Leave Much To Be Desired

WASHINGTON— If Ralph Nader were to write a critique of Soviet consumer goods, he would hardly know where to begin. The design and workmanship of most products leave much to be desired, and service and repair facilities are few and far between. But the Kremlin has promised a better deal for Russia's consumers. Under the current Five— Year Plan (1971— 75), production of consumer goods is to increase by 49 per cent.

The demand for such products is great and growing. Between 1960 and 1970, the savings of Russian workers rose from 10.9 billion rubles to 46.6 billion. At the official rate of exchange, a ruble is worth around $1.20.

This hefty increase in private savings reflects not only thrift but also dissatisfaction with consumer products already on the market. In 1970, for example, the state- run retail stores refused to accept 900,000 non- automatic washing machines because customers insisted on semi- automatic washers that were then coming into production. But since non- automatic washers were already built into the economic plan for 1971, two million were produced that year.

Buyers of the new, drum- type washer, called the Eureka, may now wish that they had opted for the older model. It turns out that the Eureka's power requirements considerably exceed the capacity of present Soviet apartment- house wiring.

Such snafus are commonplace in a centrally directed economy where prices bear scant relation to production costs and supply rarely equals demand. In this connection, Professor Jan S. Prybyla of Pennsylvania State University observed: "Using market- evolved instruments in a non- market way, that is, for administrative centralizing ends, is like trying to play Chopin's Etudes, Opus 25, on an oil drum: it can be done, but it's not the same thing."

Attempts to make the Soviet economy more responsive to normal market pressures have so far been unavailing. In September 1965, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin announced a sweeping reorganization designed to introduce the profit motive. All industrial enterprises were to be working under the new system by the end of 1968. However, the central planners soon were frightened by the specter of local economic independence and initiative. Various groups, especially those geared to the old ways, began to obstruct the profit system.

Nevertheless, new consumer products continue to appear on the Soviet market. These include such American staples as electric toothbrushes, aluminum foil, packaged potato chips, and disposable paper diapers. "A new sophistication is apparent in personal appearances as well," Dean Mills noted in the Baltimore Sun." ...Dyed and lacquered hair- dos and layers of makeup are giving way to the natural look." And the Russians now manufacture blue jeans, perhaps to discourage black- market purchases of the American variety.

Now that the Soviet consumer's appetite has been whetted, he is sure to want more and better goods. But he will have to work more and wait longer than his American counterpart to get them. According to U.S. News & World Report, "A close look at the Russian economy shows that, in over- all living standards, the Soviet Union today is a country that compares with the America of the 1920s, not the 1970s." But even that represents progress.

St. Joseph Film Has Madhouse Atmosphere

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)— There was a touch of "Madhouse" atmosphere in the lobby of the St. Charles Hotel today as filming of the St. Joseph section of the movie, "Paper Moon," began.

The lobby of the old hotel was filled with technical equipment set up by busy crews who still had time to say "pardon me" and "thank you" as they moved about their jobs.

One could sense the "uptight" feeling underneath the casual front of those in charge.

Ryan O'Neal, who stars in the film, definitely was tense as he entered the lobby of the old hotel and reached for coffee and a roll. He didn't want to talk and moved off when approached. He wasn't rude. He was distant.

"Paper Moon" is the story of a young man and an orphan girl and Midwest.

School Mistress Rids Town Of Parking Lot

WINDSOR, England (AP) — A retired former schoolmistress has won a lone, 20-year-battle to get rid of a parking lot in the center of Windsor.

In 1952, when the town paved over the two-acre tract known as Bachelor's Acre, Doris Mellor objected. She claimed the site was common land, the property of the people, and had been for 800 years.

The Windsor Borough Council brushed her off, but Miss Mellor wouldn't give up. Now the Common Land Commission has upheld her contention and ordered the paving removed and the grass put back. It will cost the council 30,000 pounds — about $72,000 — a year in parking tolls.

"There were a lot of Doubting Thomases who thought I would never succeed," said the 78-year-old woman, "but there was never any doubt in my mind."

But since non- automatic washers were already built into the economic plan for 1971, two million were produced that year.

Buyers of the new, drum- type washer, called the Eureka, may now wish that they had opted for the older model. It turns out that the Eureka's power requirements considerably exceed the capacity of present Soviet apartment- house wiring.

Such snafus are commonplace in a centrally directed economy where prices bear scant relation to production costs and supply rarely equals demand. In this connection, Professor Jan S. Prybyla of Pennsylvania State University observed: "Using market- evolved instruments in a non- market way, that is, for administrative centralizing ends, is like trying to play Chopin's Etudes, Opus 25, on an oil drum: it can be done, but it's not the same thing."

Attempts to make the Soviet economy more responsive to normal market pressures have so far been unavailing. In September 1965, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin announced a sweeping reorganization designed to introduce the profit motive. All industrial enterprises were to be working under the new system by the end of 1968. However, the central planners soon were frightened by the specter of local economic independence and initiative. Various groups, especially those geared to the old ways, began to obstruct the profit system.

Nevertheless, new consumer products continue to appear on the Soviet market. These include such American staples as electric toothbrushes, aluminum foil, packaged potato chips, and disposable paper diapers. "A new sophistication is apparent in personal appearances as well," Dean Mills noted in the Baltimore Sun." ...Dyed and lacquered hair- dos and layers of makeup are giving way to the natural look." And the Russians now manufacture blue jeans, perhaps to discourage black- market purchases of the American variety.

Now that the Soviet consumer's appetite has been whetted, he is sure to want more and better goods. But he will have to work more and wait longer than his American counterpart to get them. According to U.S. News & World Report, "A close look at the Russian economy shows that, in over- all living standards, the Soviet Union today is a country that compares with the America of the 1920s, not the 1970s." But even that represents progress.

St. Joseph Film Has Madhouse Atmosphere

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)— There was a touch of "Madhouse" atmosphere in the lobby of the St. Charles Hotel today as filming of the St. Joseph section of the movie, "Paper Moon," began.

The lobby of the old hotel was filled with technical equipment set up by busy crews who still had time to say "pardon me" and "thank you" as they moved about their jobs.

One could sense the "uptight" feeling underneath the casual front of those in charge.

Ryan O'Neal, who stars in the film, definitely was tense as he entered the lobby of the old hotel and reached for coffee and a roll. He didn't want to talk and moved off when approached. He wasn't rude. He was distant.

"Paper Moon" is the story of a young man and an orphan girl and Midwest.

School Mistress Rids Town Of Parking Lot

WINDSOR, England (AP) — A retired former schoolmistress has won a lone, 20-year-battle to get rid of a parking lot in the center of Windsor.

In 1952, when the town paved over the two-acre tract known as Bachelor's Acre, Doris Mellor objected. She claimed the site was common land, the property of the people, and had been for 800 years.

The Windsor Borough Council brushed her off, but Miss Mellor wouldn't give up. Now the Common Land Commission has upheld her contention and ordered the paving removed and the grass put back. It will cost the council 30,000 pounds — about $72,000 — a year in parking tolls.

"There were a lot of Doubting Thomases who thought I would never succeed," said the 78-year-old woman, "but there was never any doubt in my mind."

Farmers Bank To Build New Facility At Marston

PORTAGEVILLE — Under recently enacted legislation, Farmers Bank of Portageville has been granted a certificate of authority to maintain and operate a banking facility in Marston by H. Duane Pemberton, state commissioner of finance.

R. L. Saalwaechter, president of the Portageville bank, stated that the board of directors of Farmers Bank is extremely pleased to have been approved to establish a banking facility in Marston. Saalwaechter further stated that the board renews its pledge to provide the citizens of Marston and its trade territory with the most modern, progressive banking facility possible.

Construction of the Marston facility should begin within 30 to 60 days, Saalwaechter said.

Social Security Is 2/3 Of Needed Money

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Monthly social security payments to the average retired worker and his wife are about two-thirds of the income they need to live according to the latest "intermediate budget for a retired couple" from the U. S. Department of Labor.

Social security payments replace part of the earnings a worker loses when he retires. The average payment to a retired worker and his wife -- both 62 or over and both getting social security -- is $271 a month, according to Clifford Forsee, social security district manager in Cape Girardeau. "That's 68 per cent of the Department of Labor's 'intermediate budget' for a retired couple, which calls for $398 a month," Forsee said.

The intermediate budget is for a self-supporting retired couple who live independently in their own home, are in reasonably good health, and can take care of themselves, according to Forsee.

The Department of Labor has also developed a "lower-level" budget for retired couples -- $277 a month; and a "higher-level" budget -- $620 a month. "The average $271 social security payment to retired couples is 98 per cent of the Department of Labor's lower-level budget and 44 per cent of the higher-level budger," Forsee said.

Net earnings were $2,697,000 compared to $2,396,000 a year earlier for a gain of 12.58 per cent. Per share earnings were 62 cents versus 55 cents a year ago for an increase of 11.02 per cent after adjustment for a 25 per cent stock dividend paid Aug. 22.

Net earnings for the quarter were $1,359,000 compared to $1,235,000 a year ago, for a gain of 10.15 per cent. Quarterly earnings per share were 31 cents compared to 28 cents which was a gain of 8.65 per cent after giving effect to the stock dividend.

2. Card of Thanks

I would like to express our thanks and appreciation for the kindness and sympathy of each one who were so thoughtful at this time, the loss of husband. God bless each and every one of your.

Allen & Alice Figley

We did a lot of thinking and a lot of talking. We had spent 48 years together hunting for God's Country. Before my beloved died we learned something important.

We learned that God's country is in the mind, as we looked over the years we discovered that all the time we were hunting for God's country we already had it. We worked hard. We were loyal. For 48 years we had lived together in God's country.

In loving memory of our husband, father, grandfather and brother ...

2. Card of Thanks

I would like to express our thanks and appreciation for the kindness and sympathy of each one who were so thoughtful at this time, the loss of husband. God bless each and every one of your.
Allen & Alice Figley

We did a lot of thinking and a lot of talking. We had spent 48 years together hunting for God's Country. Before my beloved died we learned something important.

We learned that God's country is in the mind, as we looked over the years we discovered that all the time we were hunting for God's country we already had it. We worked hard. We were loyal. For 48 years we had lived together in God's country.

In loving memory of our husband, father, grandfather and brother ...

WHAT DOES NO-FAULT INSURANCE MEAN?

Perhaps you have read about No-Fault insurance. Ultimately, this will reduce the number of claims going to Court for settlement and will speed up payment of insurance claims. It is not intended to reduce the number of claims adjusters.

The U. S. Dept of Labor states: "Employment of claims adjusters is expected to increase at a rapid rate through the 70's . . ." Adjusting is a profession of great variety and growing opportunity.

Can you qualify? Write today for a local interview giving full name, complete address, phone number, education and previous work experience.

WHAT DOES NO-FAULT INSURANCE MEAN?

Perhaps you have read about No-Fault insurance. Ultimately, this will reduce the number of claims going to Court for settlement and will speed up payment of insurance claims. It is not intended to reduce the number of claims adjusters.

The U.S. Dept of Labor states: "Employment of claims adjusters is expected to increase at a rapid rate through the 70's . . ." Adjusting is a profession of great variety and growing opportunity.

Can you qualify? Write today for a local interview giving full name, complete address, phone number, education and previous work experience.

Education Act Breaks New Ground

WASHINGTON, D.C. The Education Amendment Act of 1972 has now been passed by Congress and signed into law. This Act breaks new ground in its provisions for assistance to college students, as well as to the higher education institutions which they attend.

A basic educational opportunity grant program authorized in the new law entitles a student from a below the poverty line family to receive $1,400 a year in federal assistance. Students from families above the poverty line are also entitled to receive the grants scaled according to what individual families can be expected to contribute to the cost.

Unlike basic grants program cannot be funded, however, until four previously existing student assistance programs -- the supplemental education opportunity grants, college work-study grants, National Defense Student Loans and Guaranteed Student Loans -- have been funded each year for specific amounts.

Also authorized is a new program of Federal aid to States on a matching basis designed to develop state scholarship programs.

Special programs for students from disadvantaged backgrounds are extended: Talent Search locates disadvantaged youths of college caliber and encourages them to enter college. Upward Bound helps them prepare for college, and Special Services for Disadvantaged Students offer tutoring and other counseling services while students are in college.

Two new provisions for financial assistance to higher education instututions have been included in the Amendments of 1972. A "cost of education" allowance has been authorized based on the number of federally assisted students attending a particular college or university. Grants may be used for any purpose, including instruction. This is the first time generalized aid to higher education has been authorized by statute.

Emergency assistance to institutions in severe financial distress has also been authorized. The Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare received testimony that indicates hundreds of institutions of higher education are facing financial disaster. According to a report from the Association of American Colleges, the average private college or university in every region of the country is "in the red".

The new law establishes a commission within the Executive Branch to study the financial crises facing colleges and universities; and also to recommend new forms of both student and institutional assistance.

There are new provisions regarding community colleges and occupational education programs. A Bureau of Occupational and Adult Education is established within the Office of Education to administer programs.

A new National Institute of Education, housed in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, is directed to assume educational research activities now conducted within the Office of Education and to coordinate education research programs throughout the Federal Government.

This legislation constitutes a new single law encompassing all continuing higher education financial assistance programs previously authorized under separate acts.

McG Aids Didn't Let Eagleton Know They Knew Of His Illness

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton said Tuesday night if aides to Sen. George McGovern knew of Eagleton's history of mental depression before the vice presidential nomination was offered him "they sure didn't let me know about it."

Eagleton, in Kansas City for an appearance today at the Associated Press Managing Editors convention, made the remark after reading a story from Washington that top McGovern aides, Frank Mankiewicz and Kirby Jones, knew of Eagleton's medical history before the nomination.

"My only contact with Frank Mankiewicz about the second spot was the 35 seconds I spent on the phone with him after Senator McGovern called me and asked me to be his running mate," Eagleton said.

"Mankiewicz said, 'No skeletons rattling around in the closet, right?' and I said, 'Right.'"

After readinthe story that said McGovern staffers blamed the Eagleton nomination and his subsequent replacement on the faltering start from which the Democratic campaign never recovered, the Missouri Democrat said:

"They never asked me. If they knew those things or were worrued about them, they should have come to me."

He said, "If they were that concerned, why didn't (Gary) Hart and Mankiewicz stay in Washington instead of going to the Virgin Islands.

"I discussed the problems with everybody who asked about it and I leveled with them. That's my question about this story. If they knew about all of this before the convention, why didn't they come to me with the reports?

"I would have said, 'That's right, the reports are true. That's the way it is.'"

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat, corn and soybean futures prices were irregular in early dealings on he Chicago Board of Trade today.

On the opening, wheat was ½ to ⅞ cent a bushel lower December 2.25⅛; corn was ¼ lower to ½ higher December 1.37¼; oats were ¼ to ½ lower, March 86¾ cents and soybeans were 1 cent lower to 2⅛ higher, November 3.79.

enlarging an eight- inch pipe on Gladys Street and $48,000 for a storm drain on Davis Boulevard.

The committee said a storm drain inventory costing $2,000 and a storm drain master plan costing $10,000 were necessary for proper drain work in the city.

The administrative and development committee suggested the city establish a department of industrial development for an estimated $28,000 to $35,500.

The committee also suggested that an urban renewal committee be established to do preliminary surveys, feasibility studies and the availability of federal funds for correcting major deficiencies in the city.

The committee also recommended wage increases for all city employes, but made no recommendation pending a wage survey being conducted by the city manager.

Sources of revenue are still being considered by the revenue committee, but the most promising possibilities for the city seem to be narrowing down between a utility tax and a sales tax.

Dick Inman, director of the Board of Municipal Utilities, told the commission a utility tax would be a mistake. He said the day of the low utility bill is over, and that the tax would tax people for a necessity. He said a sales tax is the most equitable tax there is.

City manager Jim Huff agreed, saying voters should be given a chance to decide if they want a sales tax. If the sales tax were adopted, it would bring in $400,000 in revenue, which is more than the city needs. Huff said the difference could be made up by giving residents a rebate on their personal property tax.

The commission will meet in January to prepare its final report, which will be submitted to the city council.

In other business, the board approved the resubdivision of Comstock's second addition at the end of Indiana street and ordered revisions on a 72- unit apartment complex on South West Street.

The commission ordered parking facilities changed and the streets widened by two feet. The apartments will include eight one- bedroom units, 48 two- bedroom units, 16 three- bedroom units and a community building.

Education Act Breaks New Ground

WASHINGTON, D.C. The Education Amendment Act of 1972 has now been passed by Congress and signed into law. This Act breaks new ground in its provisions for assistance to college students, as well as to the higher education institutions which they attend.

A basic educational opportunity grant program authorized in the new law entitles a student from a below the poverty line family to receive $1,400 a year in federal assistance. Students from families above the poverty line are also entitled to receive the grants scaled according to what individual families can be expected to contribute to the cost.

Unlike basic grants program cannot be funded, however, until four previously existing student assistance programs -- the supplemental education opportunity grants, college work-study grants, National Defense Student Loans and Guaranteed Student Loans -- have been funded each year for specific amounts.

Also authorized is a new program of Federal aid to States on a matching basis designed to develop state scholarship programs.

Special programs for students from disadvantaged backgrounds are extended: Talent Search locates disadvantaged youths of college caliber and encourages them to enter college. Upward Bound helps them prepare for college, and Special Services for Disadvantaged Students offer tutoring and other counseling services while students are in college.

Two new provisions for financial assistance to higher education instutions have been included in the Amendments of 1972. A "cost of education" allowance has been authorized based on the number of federally assisted students attending a particular college or university. Grants may be used for any purpose, including instruction. This is the first time generalized aid to higher education has been authorized by statute.

Emergency assistance to institutions in severe financial distress has also been authorized. The Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare received testimony that indicates hundreds of institutions of higher education are facing financial disaster. According to a report from the Association of American Colleges, the average private college or university in every region of the country is "in the red".

The new law establishes a commission within the Executive Branch to study the financial crises facing colleges and universities; and also to recommend new forms of both student and institutional assistance.

There are new provisions regarding community colleges and occupational education programs. A Bureau of Occupational and Adult Education is established within the Office of Education to administer programs.

A new National Institute of Education, housed in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, is directed to assume educational research activities now conducted within the Office of Education and to coordinate education research programs throughout the Federal Government.

This legislation constitutes a new single law encompassing all continuing higher education financial assistance programs previously authorized under separate acts.

McG Aids Didn't Let Eagleton Know They Knew Of His Illness

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton said Tuesday night if aides to Sen. George McGovern knew of Eagleton's history of mental depression before the vice presidential nomination was offered him "they sure didn't let me know about it."

Eagleton, in Kansas City for an appearance today at the Associated Press Managing Editors convention, made the remark after reading a story from Washington that top McGovern aides, Frank Mankiewicz and Kirby Jones, knew of Eagleton's medical history before the nomination.

"My only contact with Frank Mankiewicz about the second spot was the 35 seconds I spent on the phone with him after Senator McGovern called me and asked me to be his running mate," Eagleton said.

"Mankiewicz said, 'No skeletons rattling around in the closet, right?' and I said, 'Right."'

After readinthe story that said McGovern staffers blamed the Eagleton nomination and his subsequent replacement on the faltering start from which the Demodratic campaign never recovered, the Missouri Democrat said:

"They never asked me. If they knew those things or were worrued about them, they should have come to me."

He said, "If they were that concerned, why didn't (Gary) Hart and Mankiewicz stay in Washington instead of going to the Virgin Islands.

"I discussed the problems with everybody who asked about it and I leveled with them. That's my question about this story. If they knew about all of this before the convention, why didn't they come to me with the reports?

"I would have said, 'That's right, the reports are true. That's the way it is."'

enlarging an eight- inch pipe on Gladys Street and $48,000 for a storm drain on Davis Boulevard.

The committee said a storm drain inventory costing $2,000 and a storm drain master plan costing $10,000 were necessary for proper drain work in the city.

The administrative and development committee suggested the city establish a department of industrial development for an estimated $28,000 to $35,500.

The committee also suggested that an urban renewal committee be established to do preliminary surveys, feasibility studies and the availability of federal funds for correcting major deficiencies in the city.

The committee also recommended wage increases for all city employes, but made no recommendation pending a wage survey being conducted by the city manager.

Sources of revenue are still being considered by the revenue committee, but the most promising possibilities for the city seem to be narrowing down between a utility tax and a sales tax.

Dick Inman, director of the Board of Municipal Utilities, told the commission a utility tax would be a mistake. He said the day of the low utility bill is over, and that the tax would tax people for a necessity. He said a sales tax is the most equitable tax there is.

City manager Jim Huff agreed, saying voters should be given a chance to decide if they want a sales tax. If the sales tax were adopted, it would bring in $400,000 in revenue, which is more than the city needs. Huff said the difference could be made up by giving residents a rebate on their personal property tax.

The commission will meet in January to prepare its final report, which will be submitted to the city council.

In other business, the board approved the resubdivision of Comstock's second addition at the end of Indiana street and ordered revisions on a 72- unit apartment complex on South West Street.

The commission ordered parking facilities changed and the streets widened by two feet. The apartments will include eight one- bedroom units, 48 two- bedroom units, 16 three- bedroom units and a community building.

THE LOOK AT NIGHT

EASY, RACY, PERSONAL

It's the smallish night we're talking about, the private sort of evening with people one likes and wants to look well for. It can be eight for dinner and talk at someone's house .... or twenty-two and "don't dress" (meaning do — not too much, not too little). Or it's a movie, a concert, or the theatre, with something on later ... a restaurant ... a party. In other words, the most familiar, most enjoyable nights of the year. You make an effort for them ... you take time about your hair, your makeup ... you have the right jewelry ... the right thing to wear ... What's understood, and so attractively this season, is that there is a need for certain clothes at night. And they are here: short, soft, sexy dresses with a little glitter or bareness -- for restaurants and don't dress evenings ... shirts and pants, offhand as day but luxeier -- in the fabric or in the putting- together ... clothes that ease downd gracefully into low sofas and pillows. Clothes that don't strain for glamour; they have it, they give it ... what more could you ask of clothes?

CASUAL NEW WAYS TO LOOK DAZZLING AT NIGHT

For an evening that might go from gallery to bistro and wind up at a friend's, it's great to be in something so completely casual you could almost wear it for day ... and probably will, in some other way.

NEW SOFT WAYS TO LOOK IN PANTS AT NIGHT

For an evening at someone's house ... throwing darts, shooting pool, deep in cushions and talk ... simply being yourself among friends you really enjoy. What you want to be in then are pants and tops ... everything about them easy and soft, but with a certain luxe -- you're dressed.

THE LOOK OF A SHORT BLACK DRESS AT NIGHT

For an evening that starts as come- for- drinks- from- 7- to- 9 and eases on to a restaurant: black with a little special something on top -- bareness -- glitter-- a bit of see- through -- very nice for whoever is across the table.

NEW TAKE ON THE SHIRDRESS FOR DAY

For all the reasons you wear pants -- and will keep right on wearing them -- this year you're going to want to be in a dress as well. A shirty, unwaisted dress ... sometimes held by a narrow belt ... sometimes pleated ... sometimes two pieces ... sometimes over a sweater or shirt. But the feeling you get is the same as being in pants -- the ease is there, the raciness, the line.

COOL DAY COMFORTERS

Pam plans to match her Spanish mood by choosing the new wide, wide, wide leg pants set. Her white boots make an added attraction to this combo. Spanish decor is in and so will you be in your Spanish look by Sportiva from Graber's large selection.

JUST RELAX

David Boardman plans on enjoying the holidays in this casual attire of Farah Slacks of 100% polyester, Van Heusen '417' fitted body shirt and to complete the layered look a V-necked sleeveless sweater by Campus. LATEST TIPS IN FASHION

MAKE-UP

The focus is lifted to the face, an area of greater individual interest. Facial artistry is an important part of fashion, and the purposeful change is happening here, too. The look is healthy, natural, glowing. Eyes are still very important. Long lashes, upper and lower, keep the face soft. Cheeks are rosy, high and wide, polished with clear gels rather than powder. The general impression is confident, alluring and well cared for.

HAIR

No longer flying in careless abandon; the byword is control. Longer hair should be clean, sleeked back in a knot placed high on the head or low with a snood. Short hair looks great in a soft and shiny cap of waves. Those tendriled coifs are great — in the right place, with the ultra- feminine looks, usually after five.

COLORS

Look for camel and stone grey, a new rich and dark brown, black. As highlights, the fire engine reds, the marigolds. Kelly green and an electric blue show up occasionally.

JEWELRY

Throats will be decorated with pearls or delicate strands of beads perhaps with a campy home- strung look, erhaps falling below the waist. (If too "busy", the look comes apart and begins to look sloppy.) Scarves will continue to be strong accenters, small squares tied at the head (often hiding hair completely) or neck (ascot or choker with small ends toward the back).

SMALL FRY FROCK

Chris' Young World

APPEARANCE SCORECARD

The new freedom in dress requires more attention than ever to posture, grooming, and stance. Whether you're permitted to wear barely there fashions to work, school or parties, these tips can make all that "girl watching" worthwhile for you! You'll add points to your personal fashion scorecard if you:

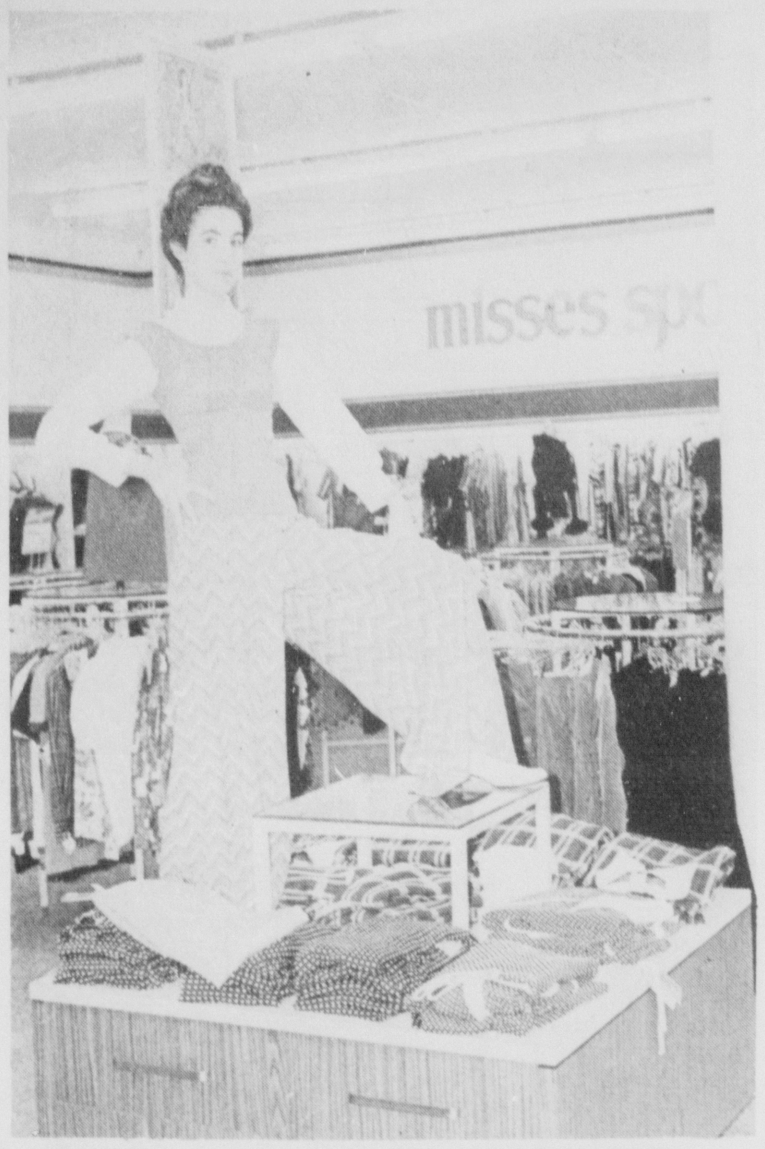
1. Always take a long gaze in a full length mirror before leaving home. That's the last time you'll have to catch a drooping hem, snagged stocking, ripped seam.

2. Learn now to move gracefully. Instead of collapsing into your desk chair, let your leg muscles do the work, gently bending them at the knee and sliding into your seat, rather than ploping yourself down low- end first.

3. When you sit, cross your legs at almost the same moment. Remember to look "like a lady" regardless of your garments. Let the crossing leg sit high over the crossed leg so that you calf doesn't do a "spread out." Watch for blouses and pullovers that "pull out" of skirts and shorts — revealing more than you'd like!

4. Rather than tumbling down the stairs pell-mell, step down gracefully, like a model, one foot in front of the other, toes pointed, head held high (don't stare at your feet).

As you can see, there's an art to even the simplest of actions!



COOL DAY COMFORTERS

Pam plans to match her Spanish mood by choosing the new wide, wide, wide leg pants set. Her white boots make an added attraction to this combo. Spanish decor is in and so will you be in your Spanish look by Sportiva from Graber's large selection.

THE LOOK AT NIGHT

It's the smallish night we're talking about, the private sort of evening with people one likes and wants to look well for. It can be eight for dinner and talk at someone's house .... or twenty-two and "don't dress" (meaning do — not too much, not too little). Or it's a movie, a concert, or the theatre, with something on later ... a restaurant ... a party. In other words, the most familiar, most enjoyable nights of the year. You make an effort for them ... you take time about your hair, your makeup ... you have the right jewelry ... the right thing to wear ... What's understood, and so attractively this season, is that there is a need for certain clothes at night. And they are here: short, soft, sexy dresses with a little glitter or bareness -- for restaurants and don't dress evenings ... shirts and pants, offhand as day but luxe-ier -- in the fabric or in the putting- together ... clothes that ease downd gracefully into low sofas and pillows. Clothes that don't strain for glamour; they have it, they give it ... what more could you ask of clothes?

CASUAL NEW WAYS TO LOOK DAZZLING AT NIGHT

For an evening that might go from gallery to bistro and wind up at a friend's, it's great to be in something so completely casual you could almost wear it for day ... and probably will, in some other way.

EASY, RACY, PERSONAL

NEW SOFT WAYS TO LOOK IN PANTS AT NIGHT

For an evening at someone's house ... throwing darts, shooting pool, deep in cushions and talk ... simply being yourself among friends you really enjoy. What you want to be in then are pants and tops ... everything about them easy and soft, but with a certain luxe -- you're dressed.

THE LOOK OF A SHORT BLACK DRESS AT NIGHT

For an evening that starts as come- for- drinks- from- 7- to- 9 and eases on to a restaurant: black with a little special something on top -- bareness -- glitter-- a bit of see- through -- very nice for whoever is across the table.

NEW TAKE ON THE SHIRDRESS FOR DAY

For all the reasons you wear pants -- and will keep right on wearing them -- this year you're going to want to be in a dress as well. A shirty, unwaisted dress ... sometimes held by a narrow belt ... sometimes pleated ... sometimes two pieces ... sometimes over a sweater or shirt. But the feeling you get is the same as being in pants -- the ease is there, the raciness, the line.

LET JEWELRY ACCENT

Now that she's made her bid for freedom (in long, swinging strides), the women for Fall '72 can be undeniably female again. More and more she'll replace her uniform, classic pants with soft, easy dresses by day and lots of glamor goddess aura by night. And jewelry, accentuating all the positives, brings femininity back for a rousing encore with gold filled accessories.

Nothing is more ladylike than Old World elegance, the Jewelry Industry Council assures us. In settings of delicate filigree matched with highly polished gold filled or filigree mixed with textured gold filled, onyx, smoky topaz, garnets and cameos become elegant expressions of this ate as pins, pendants, bracelets and rings. The lockets that were so much a part of the era have been rescued to give the suit and the sweater new life in Fall '72. Filigree, multiple textures and engravings, even diamonds; all work together to form the surface interest that makes lockets such a big hit in gold filled. "Big" is a word to be taken literally when talking about pendant lockets as some are quite large. Smaller versions are appropriate for ring, pin and bracelet lockets.

New finishes in gold filled provide the promise of feminine charm especially in a brightly polished, almost weighty finish and a wiry finish that create the cutest owls, turtles, anchors, penguins, butterflies and swallows to pin on in groups.

"My outlook on sportswear if very basic and therefore I consider it Classic, classic being timeless," says another designer. "I like a body fit — but so easy, so relaxed, so comfortable ... shade- on- shade, tone- on- tone, color- on- tint ... pants are essential ... fabrics will be very collegiate — gabardine, flannel, plaid, tweed, shetland, vicuna."

Always a big backer of separates, he says the important one for fall will be the skirt. "Sweaters will be a little more away from the body, especially the cardigan family.

The neck area is further romanced by different colored scarabs in chains, by light and airy chains that can be gouped for a layered look without a loaded look; by very modern designs using cabochon amethysts that appear to be in forward motion; by adapting the rigid neckwire into flexible halves that curve around the throat and drop pendants; by jade cut into Chinese characters, by carved ivory for more of the Orient; by stylized Zodiac pendants; by cultured pearls in filigreed gold filled "cages." Earrings and bracelets are made to pair with these different themes.

FRENCH APPAREL CENTER FILLS INFORMATION GAP

Voila—the French connection. The connection has been made by the French Apparel Center, an organization designed to act as a liaison between French manufacturers and American retailers. It aims to find new American markets for French clothing and it is well on its way to achieving its goal.

"We are an information center. Retailers can come to us with specific requests concerning European clothes, and we can provide them with information on manufacturers who might meet their needs," explains Philippe Lambert, president of the Center. Located at 11 West 42 Street, the French Apparel Center is a private association. It is not involved with the governments of either country. In addition to filling an information gap between American retailers, French manufacturers and the press, the Center hopes to encourage American participation in French trade shows.

Current interest in French fashion was one contributing factor to the establishment of the French Apparel Center. More and more American retailers are going to Europe. Last February, 250 retailers attended the Salon European de l'Habillement Masculin (SEHM show); three times the number who attended three years ago, according to a SEHM spokesman.

According to Lambert, retailers in both specialty and department stores have been buying the French look. In addition to the elegance that French clothes connote, there is a difference between French and American styling, Lambert maintains. French men's pants are longer and more tapered than their American counterparts. Jackets are generally longer and more fitted through the waist. Lambert believes that in the past six to seven years, the French have revolutionized fashion. He cites Cardin as being an outstanding force.

The American retailer is not an easy customer for the French manufacturer, in Lambert's view. He does not always buy in depth, but buys just enough to foster his own store image by carrying a European line. The American retailer runs into problems of his own in buying French merchandise. The greatest of them are size and fit.

Through the French Apparel Center, France is alive and well and living in America.

THE NEW LOOK IN LITTLE GIRL'S DRESSES

The dress is going back to school this fall, and the tomboy look is definitely dropping out. For the first time in several seasons, little girl fashions have a lady- like quality that truly separates the girls from the boys.

One of the good reasons for reviving the dress is the perfection of fivers and fabrics that make designers and mothers equally happy. One fiber company, for instance, now has combined rayon and polyester fibers for a fabric that looks and feels like fine flannel.

It's a designer's dream for giving a shape that stays to jumper dresses, skirts and blazers, and the fabric needs no more of Mother's tender loving care than the casual clothes her daughter has been wearing. The new fall looks keep their shape and bright colors intact through a life cycle of machine washings.

Equally wash- and- wearable are the new lady- like looks taking shape in rayon shirt dresses, smocks and pinafores in both long and short lengths.

SMOOTH LOOK IS BACK...

Pageboy popularity can be attributed to the understatement of the style. The "page" is practical and uncomplicated ... free- falling "easy" waves that end in a gentle under- turn at the shoulders (or much shorter for '72 flavor). This style can be parted in the middle or on the side ... worn with soft bangs or "off the face." No multi-lengths or layers limit creatability; simply style up or down to suit the occasion.

Fortunately, 1972 pageboys won't go straight or lose their unruffled look in rainy, humid, or windy weather if you include among your beauty- makers a non-aerosol hair mist that romises lasting hold with no stiff, tacky film to dull shining hair. It's important to keep hair soft-looking and in- place whether the mood is casual or sophisticated. It's all part of the totally smooth look for fall.

Coiffure is as Classic as couture for Fall, '72. "Smooth, chic, and refined" is a seasonal fashion consensus, and hairstyles have taken their cue. The darling of the fall hair collection is the Classic pageboy ... pretty and low-keyed enough to complement anything from "at home" to "in town" to "at the theatre."

Unlike many past seasons, fall fashion this time around ignores no age group or lifestyle. Fabulous lengths and looks cater to everyone. The "cover-up" trend of layered shags has been edged out by the fashion forerunners. The versatile pageboy, for instance, is seen with everything from the simple chemise and the bareback halter dress to the short "little" black cocktail dress with pearls and the tailored gray flannel suit.

Gloves will come back to keep the lady "dressed to the fingertips." New versions include crinkle leathers, crochets, cut-outs, hardware trim with grommits or buckles. The gauntlet is expected to return.

EVENING HOSTESS

Christy is ready for an evening of relaxation in this pretty hostess robe from T.G.&Y. The robe features black top with matching red, blue and black plaid skirt. The white collar and cuffs give the robe a dressy look. The brushed fabric is easy care as well as pretty. Buttons of the front and the belt make it easy to put on.

SELF CONSTRUCTED FASHION

"Sikeston Fabrics" Mrs. Emma Lee Causey, is displaying , as she phrases it, "my go anywhere dress", it is a royal blue ribbed polyester dress. A very casual elegant style that would fit any occasion. We would also like to say a special "Thanks" to all of our customers who have patronized our store.

It's important to keep hair soft-looking and in- place whether the mood is casual or sophisticated. It's all part of the totally smooth look for fall.

Coiffure is as Classic as couture for Fall, '72. "Smooth, chic, and refined" is a seasonal fashion consensus, and hairstyles have taken their cue. The darling of the fall hair collection is the Classic pageboy ... pretty and low-keyed enough to complement anything from "at home" to "in town" to "at the theatre."

Unlike many past seasons, fall fashion this time around ignores no age group or lifestyle. Fabulous lengths and looks cater to everyone. The "cover-up" trend of layered shags has been edged out by the fashion forerunners. The versatile pageboy, for instance, is seen with everything from the simple chemise and the bareback halter dress to the short "little" black cocktail dress with pearls and the tailored gray flannel suit.

Gloves will come back to keep the lady "dressed to the fingertips." New versions include crinkle leathers, crochets, cut-outs, hardware trim with grommits or buckles. The gauntlet is expected to return.

EVENING HOSTESS

Christy is ready for an evening of relaxation in this pretty hostess robe from T.G.&Y. The robe features black top with matching red, blue and black plaid skirt. The white collar and cuffs give the robe a dressy look. The brushed fabric is easy care as well as pretty. Buttons of the front and the belt make it easy to put on.

SELF CONSTRUCTED FASHION

"Sikeston Fabrics" Mrs. Emma Lee Causey, is displaying , as she phrases it, "my go anywhere dress", it is a royal blue ribbed polyester dress. A very casual elegant style that would fit any occasion. We would also like to say a special "Thanks" to all of our customers who have patronized our store.

COMFORT

Jennie Bridges and Lois Bell are all ready for winter and the Kingsway Plaza Mall's second Annual Fashion Show Thursday night with Maxi coats selected from J. C. Penney's large selection of winter coats.

Cartwrights Closing Down The Ponderosa

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ben Cartwright is closing down the Ponderosa Ranch. Little Joe, the last of the Cartwright sons, is leaving home. "Bonanza" has been canceled.

"Bonanza," at one time the most popular show on television, winds up 14 years on the NBC Television Network next Jan. 23.

The filming of the last episode of the Western drama - the 431st - will be completed tomorrow night.

The long-running show was canceled Monday by NBC, along with "The Bold Ones," "Banyon" and "Night Gallery."

"Bonanza" was switched from Sunday to Tuesday nights at the beginning of this season, but the Cartwrights were no match for CBS' "Maude." It slipped badly in the ratings and in the latest report was in 52nd place.

Executive Producer David Dortort, who had learned the news only two hours earlier, said, "We've had a very long and beautiful run."

But it will not be the last seen of "Bonanza," the first television show ever filmed from the beginning in 1959 in color. The early years of the show are now in syndication to stations under the title of "Ponderosa." The show's worldwide audience is estimated at 400 million.

Dortort said the cancellation came as a surprise. He was told personally by Lawrence White, NBC vice president of programming.

"White said that 'Bonanza' had always meant so much to NBC that they didn't want to see it peter out," he said.

Dortort said the show was still trying to overcome "the tremendous gap" left by the death last May 13 of Dan Blocker, who played Hoss Cartwright.

"I don't think we really quite got over his death," Dortort said. "We were confident that by the end of the season we would be back in the mainstream. Apparently the network didn't want to invest the time."

Lorne Green as Ben and Michael Landon as Joe were the two remaining Cartwrights. A third son, Adam, was written out of the series when Pernell Roberts quit in 1965.

Mitch Vogel joined the cast several years ago as Jaime, and last year was adopted by the Cartwrights.

Israel will export a record $35- million worth of diamonds this year. Rough stones are bought from South Africa and other countries and then finished out.

A Family Thanksgiving Means A Family Movie

Capturing the authentic spirit of the occasion in pictures, however, requires more than the okay-everybody- line- up- and- have-your- picture- taken approach. Not that group shots for the record aren't a good idea. It's just that they don't cover the subject.

To do that requires a photographer -- and a camera -- which will move from enticing views of the kitchen preparations, to a small child's delighted discovery of Grandpa's antique high- wheel bicycle, followed by an introduction to Grandma's stereoptician. In other words, what is needed is an imaginative photographer and a Kodak XL33 movie camera.

This combination can capture the memorable moments as they occur, indoors and out, without movie lights, including the late evening nightcap around the fireplace.

Planning the outline of your movie in advance will help to save editing time later but there is also much to be said for filming action as it develops naturally. Contrived action rarely achieves real spontaneity, and can all too easily result in people just waving and smiling self-consciously at the camera.

The trick is to be both unobtrusive and alert. Movie scenes, remember, should range from 5 to fifteen seconds in length, averaging about 10. With the XL33 camera, you can see a possible sequence, aim, shoot, and move on before anyone is aware of your presence. If a particular gouping or individual seems worthy of more footage, change your position and shooting angle for variety's sake.

Thanksgiving dinner itself is the climax of the holiday but just as the second- day turkey sometimes tastes better than the first, so the picture possibilities improve as the weekend progresses. Whether the family works off their big dinner with touch football on the lawn, frostbite sailing, a hike in the woods, or a trip to the zoo, the camera should be there.

And when everyone comes back indoors for turkey sandwiches and hot buttered rum, filming should continue.

The pumpkin pie and turkey won't last through the weekend. Your movie, as a priceless part of your family archives, will be there to enjoy -- and enjoy -- and enjoy.

Questions and Answers From Internal Revenue Service

This column of questions and answers on the President's Economic Stabilization Program is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service. The column answers questions most frequently asked about wages and prices.

Q) How are prices on seafood products controlled

A) The first sale of seafood by a fisherman or producer is exempt from controls. However, all later sales are subject to Economic Stabilization regulations. For example, if a wholesaler buys live lobster from the fisherman who caught it, this is the first sale and is not subject to the regulations. When the wholesaler sells the lobster to a restaurant, this is the second sale and is subject to controls.

As long as he does not violate Price Commission regulations on mark- ups and profit margins, a seafood retailer or wholesaler may increase the price of seafood to cover the increased cost of the products to him.

Q) Does the Internal Revenue Service have a form landlords can use to notify tenants of a proposed rent increase?

A) Yes. A landlord, at his option, may use IRS Form S-38, "Notification and Computation of Rent Increase or Decrease," to notify a tenant of a proposed rent increase. This form follows the notification requirements specified in the rent regulations. Copies may be obtained from any Internal Revenue office.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Patterned Terry Cloth Made Into Tablecloths

By POLLY CRAMER

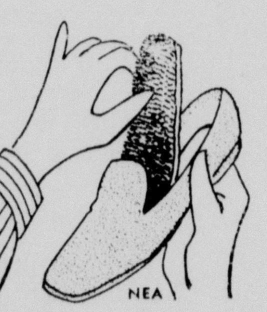
DEAR POLLY—I have five children so am always looking for time and energy savers. Terry cloth now comes in such beautiful bright patterns I have made several tablecloths out of it by simply hemming. These cloths soak up spills, can be washed and dried with the towels. They do not need ironing and can be changed often. More advanced sewers also might make matching curtains, appliance covers, chair covers, etc. I do advise preshrinking the material by first washing and drying it.—MRS. R. L. Z.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know what I can do with a lot of old plastic flowers. I hate to throw them away. Any suggestions will be greatly appreciated.—UNA MAE

DEAR POLLY—I have two Pet Peeves. I really get out of patience when I open a bag of flour and the coupon therein causes the flour to spill all over. Why do people phone, carry on a conversation and expect me to guess who they are? Why don't folks identify themselves right away if they are not relatives or friends whose voices would be familiar? I do hope this will be read by those who can eliminate these peeves.—HELEN

DEAR POLLY—I think I have help for Cecelia who wants to remove a stamped pattern from a sheet. I had some that I had washed and had taken to the dry cleaners for the removal of the inked pattern but with no luck. Finally I discovered that white ballpoint pen ink remover worked like magic with only one application. Do hope this works for her.—MRS. R. E. H.



DEAR POLLY—Leftover pieces of the short-nap indoor-outdoor carpet make fine innersoles for rubber boots, slippers, etc. The rubber backing keeps the soles from sliding around and the thickness of this material is most comfortable. Try it, you will like it.—WILLIAM, who wears them.

DEAR POLLY—When I wash my quilted bedspread that has a ruffle around it, I let the spread dry, put it on the bed and then iron it. I first iron the center and then turn the ruffle up on the bed and iron it. This is much easier than trying to iron a big clumsy spread on the ironing board.—MRS. R. E. R.

Proxmire To Run 1,200 Miles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire is going to expand his five-mile- a - day habit to a 1,200- mile walking and running tour around his home state of Wisconsin.

Proxmire, the 57-year-old physical fitness buff who runs five miles to Capital Hill each day, termed the tour, "My idea of having a ball." He does not run for re-election until 1976.

He said he wanted to do it so he could talk with the people, the farmer in the barn and the mechanic in the grease pit.

Proxmire, a Democrat, said he would space his trip through late fall and winter, with the first 250-mile segment starting next week. He plans to run 10 miles a day and walk another 15 to 20 through such towns next week as South Milwaukee, Racine, Lead Mine, Hazel Green, Fair Play and Footville.

Lawyers For Ellsberg, Russo To Ask For New Jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Laywers for Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo are expected to ask for a new jury now that the Supreme Court has cleared a roadblock from the resumption of their criminal trial over publication of the Pentagon Papers.

But trial Judge Matt Byrne of Los Angeles could decide to keep the jury he sent home back in August. Either way there could be some legal risks involved.

The delay, ordered in July by Justice William O. Douglas, apparently is the longest in the course of a jury trial in the United States. It was prompted by a quarrel over government wiretapping and wheather the wiretap logs should be turned over to the defense.

The court, by a 7-2 vote Monday, closed the issue for the time being by denying a hearing to Ellsberg and Russo. Justice Douglas and William J. Brennan Jr. dissented.

The next move is up to Byrne. He is expected to summon lawyers for both sides to his chambers late this week and start the prosecution rolling again.

Ellsberg and Russo have been charged with espionage, conspiracy and misuse of government property in the publication of the once-secret study of the origins of the Vietnam war.

Although Byrne cautioned the 12 jurors and six alternates that they should not discuss the trial with anyone, defense lawyers probably will argue that outside influences are impossible to screen out during more than three months.

The defnese already has offered to waive the constitutional protection against double jeopardy if the judge impanels a new jury. That is, Ellsberg and Russo would give up their chance of claiming in a subsequent appeal that they actually were tried twice for the same crime in violation of the Fifth Amendment.

Nevertheless, the presiding judge may conclude the best thing to do is to keep the old jury.

The Supreme Court rejected the appeal without any comment on the wiretap question and others raised by the defendants.

The government has acknowledged that one of the 16 members of the defense's legal team was overheard by government wiretappers. Ellsberg and Russo argued that they have a right to see the logs to judge for themselves whether the eavesdropping produced any leads or evidence for the prosecution.

Judge Byrne examined the transcript and concluded the wiretapping was irrelevant to the case. His judgment was affirmed by the U. S. Circuit Court in San Francisco.

Silk Scarf Pilots Still Fly To War; They Rescue Other Pilots Downed Over Vietnan

NAKORN PHANOM AIR BASE, Thailand (AP) — Long silk scarves trail from the pilots' parachute harnesses as they taxi their planes into position for take off.

With smoke and oil pouring from the engine cowling, the ancient Al Skyraiders roar down the runway and lift off over the muddy Mekong River toward the North Vietnamese border 65 miles away.

Before long they rendezvous with the squat HH53 Super Jolly Green Giant helicopters, the second partner in what has been called the most daring flying job of the Vietnam war.

The slow-moving Skyraiders and helicopters team up to rescue American pilots shot down in Laos and North Vietnam. Nearly 200 pilots have been saved from prison camps by the rescue team's seat-of-the pants flying.

Most of the pickups occur over dense jungle, often with intense antiaircraft fire around them.

The helicopters lower a sling to the grounded pilot while the propeller- driven Skyraiders protect the helicopter and downed pilot.

"We usually fly at tree-top level and entice them the enemy to shoot at us. Almost every mission we encounter ground fire," says Lt. Col. Jim Harding, 38, Brookville, Pa., a former Penn State tackle who now commands the 1st Special Operations Squadron at Nakorn Phanom.

"We use a lot of smoke and try to isolate the area with CBU cluster bomb units which are small bomblets, like a grenade.

"We put white smoke white phosphorus on three sides as close to the pilot as possible," Harding explains. "When it's safe, we bring the Jollies in."

"In North Vietnam," he said, "we've lost some pilots we've been talking to on the survival radio. The last you hear is the survivor saying: 'They're coming after me'."

The lumbering, prop-driven Skyraider first came into use in 1945. Many of the pilots on the present rescue operations are younger than their planes.

Pilots claim it is so slow the MIG fighters used by North Vietnam cannot shoot it down.

Sometimes the air rescue teams pick up pilots within minutes after they bail out. Other times, such as during the rescue of Marine Maj. Clyde Smith, it can take days.

Smith's Phantom jet was peppered by an antiaircraft burst and he bailed out along the Laotian - North Vietnamese border. He spent three days hiding in the jungle in what became one of the best known rescue operations of the war.

Near Smith's hiding place were two enemy missile sites and 30 radar-directed antiaircraft guns. More than 150 sorties by U. S. aircraft were flown to put the guns and missiles out of action before the helicopter pilot dared rescue Smith.

When the Skyraiders and helicopters went in for the pickup, they flew into a trap. Two previously silent antiaircraft guns opened up on them. The U. S. planes only escaped with Smith because enemy gunners opened fire prematurely.

"If they had waited for the Jolly, they'd have obliterated it," said Harding.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Heart Surgery and Mental Problems

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I would like to tell you of my mental problems. I had a near fatal heart attack three years ago. Eighteen months later, I could hardly put one foot ahead of the other. My cardiologist did a dye test on my heart to determine if and where I had a blocked artery.

The dye test caused a blood clot above my right ankle. It was removed by a suction machine up through my groin. I could not be given any sedatives due to my heart condition and I went through very much pain — so, I don't plan to ever have another dye test.

I did have a blocked artery, the main one over the front of my heart. My doctor advised me to have open heart surgery. He said I didn't have a chance to live another year without surgery. He explained a vein would be removed from my left leg and sewed to the artery to bypass the clogged artery.

I decided to have it, as I still have young children. I am a 43-year-old female. I went to Houston, Texas, for the surgery. Everything went wrong. My heart stopped on the table before my chest was opened — so that called for quick action to get it open. The surgeon massaged my heart until the heart-lung machine could be set up.

The surgeon did not know how long my heart stopped without blood circulation. He was afraid I might have brain damage. However, I went into a coma which lasted eight days. I cannot tell you about the horrible dreams I went through.

I am doing fairly well now, and take medicine for my heart and to control skipping of the heart. My problem is I can't shake the bad dreams. The surgeon told my husband I would have loss of memory, that I should forget it all and not talk about it. I am nervous and cannot hold anything in. I feel I just have to talk about it. I am worried about myself and sometimes I have chest pain. I have fought hard to live. I had pneumonia the fourth day and didn't know where the next breath was coming from. Can you understand what I went through?

Dr. Lamb, I am very thankful I am still alive. I do not want to be a cardiac cripple, but I just can't shake this mental thing. I have nightmares where I beat on my husband to fix the oxygen machine, it is on fire, etc. I need someone to talk to. My family is very kind but they don't understand my problem, so if you can read this, God bless you.

Dear Reader — Yes, I understand what you have been through. As a heart specialist I have attended many patients through open heart surgery. I wanted to put your letter in the column because too often people hear only the wonderous achievements in heart surgery without hearing the other side of the story. There are many complications that can occur and this is why some heart specialists are relatively conservative about sending patients to surgery.

I think you should talk about your experience. The best thing for you to do is talk the whole thing out. You will get over the experience faster if you ventilate all your feelings. Good luck and I hope your health improves.

Prince Charles Is Twenty-Four

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, was 24 Tuesday, moving the London papers to much purple prose and in the case of the Daily Mirror to a royal purple masthead.

"Here," cooed the Daily Express, "is Bonnie Prince Charlie doing a little highland jig in the heather with his cousin."

"I Am Woman" May Be Marching Song For Women's Movement

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It may be the first marching song for women's lib — a tune called "I Am Woman" which sounds a catchy call to revolution and has been selling about 25,000 records per day.

"I've been getting lots of mail about the song from housewives," says composersinger Helen Reddy. "They say that if they feel depressed they put the record on and it bucks them up."

The lyrics written by Ms. Reddy declare:

"I am strong
I am invincible
I am woman."

The Australian-born performer, who shuns makeup and favors a simple pixie haircut, employs a male hnusekeeper, and when he's not there she and her husband-manager Jeff Wald share household chores.

"The last person up in the morning makes the bed," she says. 'It's only fair. He sleeps in it too."

"I Am Woman," which includes the resolve that "...no one's ever gonna keep me down again," has been snapped up as the theme song for a women's lib movie, "Stand Up and Be Counted," and Ms. Reddy is using it as the title piece in her next album.

"The song started out as a personal statement," says the 30-year-old singer, recalling her struggle to make it as an entertainer.

The daughter of Australian entertainers Stella Lamond and Max Reddy, Helen had grown up in show business and started singing professionally at 15. When she won a talent contest in 1966 with a prize of a trip to the United States, Ms. Reddy, then divorced, set out with her small daughter Traci to find success. It was a long search.

"I had come to America at precisely the wrong time," she recalls. "Everything was male groups and loud noise. There was just no market for lone girl singers."

She met and married Wald, a talent agent.

Acupuncture: It Works, They Don't Know How

SHANGHAI (AP) — Theories about acupuncture go back 2,000 years, and recently the needle treatment has enjoyed unprecedented popularity — but the Chinese still can't explain how it works.

While doctors speak of "pain relief" rather than claiming cures, there seems no doubt that results have been attained in such fields as the restoration of impaired hearing or speech.

Acupuncture anesthesia was developed in China only recently. Experiments began in 1958 during a mass movement to study and popularize acupuncture, traditional Chinese medicine and the combination of Chinese and Western medicine.

Since then, about half a million operations have been performed with this type of anesthesia. The number of needles used has been reduced from several dozen to one or two in many operations today.

The experiments are continuing since, in some operations, patients still feel pain or are uncomfortable when organs are removed.

Most experiments are conducted by civilian and military acunpuncturists and physicians on themselves, although volunteers are not lacking.

A visitor to Hua Shan Hospital here found two patients in neighboring rooms undergoing surgery for the removal of brain tumors.

In the first room a man of 35 had two needles — one in each cheek — as anesthesia. He was awake and talking with the surgeon who was cutting into his scalp.

In the adjoining room Wang Shang-kuan, a 50-year-old worker at a commune store, had four needles — three in his feet and a fourth in his face. Surgeons were removing an eggshaped tumor, three inches long, from the top of his exposed brain.

This correspondent and Wang talked in the Shanghai dialect while the operation was in progress.

"Are you all right?"

"I'm fine."

"Does it hurt?"

"No, it's all right."

Three days later, the correspondent found Wang in good shape and smiling. "There's no pain," he said, pointing to his head. "I'm feeling fine."

Dr. Cheng An-chi, 36, the surgeon, said Wang would be leaving the hospital in about two weeks and probably would be able to resume work in about a month.

The operation lasted two hours. The anesthetic needles were activated by electric current.

Both patients' tumors were benign, Dr. Cheng reported.

Dr. Chao Wei-peng, another surgeon, said the hospital had used acupuncture anesthesia in more than 1,300 operations in several years with 90 per cent success.

"Acupuncture anesthesia is still new, he observed. "We are still exploring. The principles of why acupuncture can be used as anesthesia have not been fully explained and are not fully understood. In certain operations — mostly abdominal — 100 per cent anesthesia is not achieved. The patient still feels some pain."

Like most traditional Chinese medicine, acupuncture is based on the negative yin and positive yang principle and a life force or energy called chi.

"This chi energy circulates through the body by means of 12 invisible channels or meridians which are linked with the vital organs of the body," Dr. Chao said.

"The channels can be reached through more than 360 basic points on the skin of the body and many more auxiliary points. Near each point there are fine nerve ends. The needles penetrate these points in treatment. The point of insertion need not be near the afflicted point. To treat a stomach ailment, for example, needles may be inserted at points in the hands."

In good health, yin and yang forces supposedly are in harmony and kept in balance by the chi energy or force. A disease or illness upsets this balance, said Dr. Chao, and acupuncture by stimulation or depression of the chi flow restores balance.

Records 2,000 years ago cited "the curing of diseases by pricking with a sharp stone." Today acupuncture is done with fine needles of stainless steel two to five or six inches long. For animals, needles are thicker and longer.

Acupuncture kits are obtainable at any department store or druggist. They consist of small plastic dolls or charts showing the various acupuncture points plus an assortment of needles and an instruction booklet. A couple of moxa sticks are usually included. The needles cost 2 to 2½ cents, the moxa sticks about 1½ cents.

Atlantic Fleet Preparing To Aid Prisoners

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Atlantic Fleet is preparing for Operation Egress Recap, the Defense Department plan for bringing American prisoners of war home from North Vietnam.

A fleet-level meeting believed to be the most extensive so far is scheduled here next Monday to go over the plans, a Navy spokesman said Monday.

The meeting at Norfolk Naval Station, home of the Atlantic Fleet, will be closed to reporters, the spokesman said.

Egress Recap is designed to go into effect as soon as word comes on where a prisoner exchange will take place. The exchange is expected to be completed within 60 days from the signing of a peace agreement.

"I've been getting lots of mail about the song from housewives," says composersinger Helen Reddy. "They say that if they feel depressed they put the record on and it bucks them up."

The lyrics written by Ms. Reddy declare:

"I am strong
I am invincible
I am woman."

The Australian-born performer, who shuns makeup and favors a simple pixie haircut, employs a male hnusekeeper, and when he's not there she and her husband-manager Jeff Wald share household chores.

"The last person up in the morning makes the bed," she says. 'It's only fair. He sleeps in it too."

"I Am Woman," which includes the resolve that "...no one's ever gonna keep me down again," has been snapped up as the theme song for a women's lib movie, "Stand Up and Be Counted," and Ms. Reddy is using it as the title piece in her next album.

"The song started out as a personal statement," says the 30-year-old singer, recalling her struggle to make it as an entertainer.

The daughter of Australian entertainers Stella Lamond and Max Reddy, Helen had grown up in show business and started singing professionally at 15. When she won a talent contest in 1966 with a prize of a trip to the United States, Ms. Reddy, then divorced, set out with her small daughter Traci to find success. It was a long search.

"I had come to America at precisely the wrong time," she recalls. "Everything was male groups and loud noise. There was just no market for lone girl singers."

She met and married Wald, a talent agent.

Acupuncture: It Works, They Don't Know How

SHANGHAI (AP) — Theories about acupuncture go back 2,000 years, and recently the needle treatment has enjoyed unprecedented popularity — but the Chinese still can't explain how it works.

While doctors speak of "pain relief" rather than claiming cures, there seems no doubt that results have been attained in such fields as the restoration of impaired hearing or speech.

Acupuncture anesthesia was developed in China only recently. Experiments began in 1958 during a mass movement to study and popularize acupuncture, traditional Chinese medicine and the combination of Chinese and Western medicine.

Since then, about half a million operations have been performed with this type of anesthesia. The number of needles used has been reduced from several dozen to one or two in many operations today.

The experiments are continuing since, in some operations, patients still feel pain or are uncomfortable when organs are removed.

Most experiments are conducted by civilian and military acunpuncturists and physicians on themselves, although volunteers are not lacking.

A visitor to Hua Shan Hospital here found two patients in neighboring rooms undergoing surgery for the removal of brain tumors.

In the first room a man of 35 had two needles — one in each cheek — as anesthesia. He was awake and talking with the surgeon who was cutting into his scalp.

In the adjoining room Wang Shang-kuan, a 50-year-old worker at a commune store, had four needles — three in his feet and a fourth in his face. Surgeons were removing an eggshaped tumor, three inches long, from the top of his exposed brain.

This correspondent and Wang talked in the Shanghai dialect while the operation was in progress.

"Are you all right?"

"I'm fine."

"Does it hurt?"

"No, it's all right."

Three days later, the correspondent found Wang in good shape and smiling. "There's no pain," he said, pointing to his head. "I'm feeling fine."

Dr. Cheng An-chi, 36, the surgeon, said Wang would be leaving the hospital in about two weeks and probably would be able to resume work in about a month.

The operation lasted two hours. The anesthetic needles were activated by electric current.

Both patients' tumors were benign, Dr. Cheng reported.

Dr. Chao Wei-peng, another surgeon, said the hospital had used acupuncture anesthesia in more than 1,300 operations in several years with 90 per cent success.

"Acupuncture anesthesia is still new, he observed. "We are still exploring. The principles of why acupuncture can be used as anesthesia have not been fully explained and are not fully understood. In certain operations — mostly abdominal — 100 per cent anesthesia is not achieved. The patient still feels some pain."

Like most traditional Chinese medicine, acupuncture is based on the negative yin and positive yang principle and a life force or energy called chi.

"This chi energy circulates through the body by means of 12 invisible channels or meridians which are linked with the vital organs of the body," Dr. Chao said.

"The channels can be reached through more than 360 basic points on the skin of the body and many more auxiliary points. Near each point there are fine nerve ends. The needles penetrate these points in treatment. The point of insertion need not be near the afflicted point. To treat a stomach ailment, for example, needles may be inserted at points in the hands."

In good health, yin and yang forces supposedly are in harmony and kept in balance by the chi energy or force. A disease or illness upsets this balance, said Dr. Chao, and acupuncture by stimulation or depression of the chi flow restores balance.

Records 2,000 years ago cited "the curing of diseases by pricking with a sharp stone." Today acupuncture is done with fine needles of stainless steel two to five or six inches long. For animals, needles are thicker and longer.

Acupuncture kits are obtainable at any department store or druggist. They consist of small plastic dolls or charts showing the various acupuncture points plus an assortment of needles and an instruction booklet. A couple of moxa sticks are usually included. The needles cost 2 to 2½ cents, the moxa sticks about 1½ cents.

Atlantic Fleet Preparing To Aid Prisoners

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Atlantic Fleet is preparing for Operation Egress Recap, the Defense Department plan for bringing American prisoners of war home from North Vietnam.

A fleet-level meeting believed to be the most extensive so far is scheduled here next Monday to go over the plans, a Navy spokesman said Monday.

The meeting at Norfolk Naval Station, home of the Atlantic Fleet, will be closed to reporters, the spokesman said.

Thieu Turns The Peace Tables On Nixon

ART BUCHWALD
Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON — Dr. Kis N. Guh, President Thieu's special representative, has arrived here with his top advisers to try to persuade President Nixon to form a coalition government in the United States.

So far the talks have not been going well, and President Nixon has remained adamant in his stand not to accept a negotiated settlement of the November elections.

"I intend to remain President for the next four years," President Nixon angrily told Dr. Kis N. Guh, "no matter how much pressure the South Vietnamese government puts on me."

Dr. Kis N. Guh told President Nixon, "This is completely unsatisfactory to the Democratic Party. They insist that peace can only come to thy United States if you are removed from office. We, of course, will support you, but we have to reach some compromise that will be satisfactory to all parties."

"No compromise," President Nixon said. "I will not make one concession to the Democrats. They are trying to destroy my government, and I will not stand for it."

"Before you make up your mind, let me spell out the terms of peaceful settlement to see if something can be worked out," Dr. Kis N. Guh said.

President Nixon sat stony-faced.

"First," said Dr. Kis N. Guh, "you would remain President of the United States until the country holds free and open elections under international supervision."

"That's ridiculous," said President Nixon.

Dr. Kis N. Guh continued, "Second, Senator George McGovern would be named Vice President in the coalition government."

"What about Spiro Agnew?"

"He would become the United States ambassador to Uganda. Ramsey Clark would be attorney general and Dr. Spock would be secretary of health, education and welfare."

"What about my people?" President Nixon asked.

"Your people would have Cabinet positions, too. James Hoffa would be secretary of transportation, and Maurice Stans would be secretary of the Treasury. The rest of the Cabinet posts would go to Ralph Nader's people, whom we consider neutral."

"After the cease- fire, all territory pacified by the Republicans will remain Republican and all territory in Democratic hands will stay Democratic.

"Now this is the part we think you'll like. The Democrats have agreed to give amnesty to all Republicans involved in the Watergate bugging scandal on the condition that every tape and captured enemy documents be returned to Democratic headquarters."

"We're winning the war," President Nixon said. "I see no reason why we should bargain with outlaws."

"I cannot stress," Dr. Kis N. Guh said, "how strongly President Thieu feels this is a just and honorable settlement. His election depends on achieving peace in the United States. He has asked me to tell you that if you do not accept the conditions as outlined he will not accept any more military and civilian aid for his country."

"Why that's blackmail," President Nixon said.

"President Thieu has also told me to advise you that unless you agree to a coalition government he will not allow you to bomb North Vietnam."

"He's taking all my options away!" President Nixon cried.

"It's up to you," Dr. Kis N. Guh said. "President Thieu is losing his patience and the people of South Vietnam are sick and tired of all the fighting going on in the United States. What is your answer?"

"Tell President Thieu," President Nixon said, "that no matter how much I need to support him, if he tries to force this settlement on me, I will go it alone."

Questions & Answers On Stabilization

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column of questions and answers on the President's Economic Stabilization Program is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service. The column answers questions most frequently asked about wages and prices.

Q. What is the IRS doing to make sure landlords don't illegally increase rents for tenants receiving higher Social Security benefits?

A. The Internal Revenue Service has begun compliance audits involving more than 50,000 rental units which house high percentages of older persons on Social Security. In addition, expedited service is being given to the inquiries and complaints of Social Security beneficiaries. Thus, a person contacting the IRS with a rent inquiry or complaint should identify himself, or herself, as a Social Security beneficiary.

At the same time the IRS has initiated this "rent watch, " it has been granted new authority to administer sanctions and allocate penalties to landlords who illegally overcharge rent. Cases of flagrant violation of rent rules will be turned over to the Justice Department for litigation and possible prosecution. Finally, the IRS and Cost of Living council are distributing materials designed to educate landlords and tenants about their rights and responsibilities under the Economic Stabilization Program . Free IRS rent publications are available from Internal Revenue district offices.

Q. Is all rental property covered by the rent regulations?

A. No. The regulations exempt many types of rental property. However, the regulations generally control most rented residences. Property exempt fr the controls includes:

1) All nonresidential property, including property leased for industrial, farm or commercial purposes;

2) Rental units which were completed and first offered for rent after August 15, 1971;

3) Rehabilitated dwellings (where the cost of rehabilitation is more than one- half the fair market value of the pre- rehabilitated property or the cost of that property) offered for rent for the first time after August 15, 1971;

4) Rental units where the owner, and members of his family, do not own or control, directly or indirectly, more than four rental units; and

5) Units renting for $500 a month or more on January 19, 1972.

Q. If a Category II manufacturer wants to increase prices, what forms does it have to file and when?

A. Category II manufacturers -- generally those with sales of $50 million to $100 million -- must file a Form PC-1, "Report for Price Increases for Manufacturing, Service Industries and the Professions," with the Price Commission for the quarter in which a price increase has occurred. Along with the PC-1 form, a Form PC-51, "Report on Sales, Costs, and Profits," must be filed not more than 45 days after the end of a fiscal quarter or 90 days after the end of the firm's fiscal year. If a Form PC-50, "Base Period Income Statement," has not already been filed, it must be submitted at this time.

Smaller firms, which are not required to file with the Price Commission, may find these forms helpful in complying with Economic Stabilization regulations. Forms may be obtained at any IRS office.

Old West Theater To Be Razed

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — The Old Brewery Theater, cradled in a gulch about as far Off Broadway as you can get, is to be crushed to rubble next month, a victim of urban renewal.

Out here, where culture wears cowboy boots, the small summer theater for 18 seasons offered something akin to Broadway action for both the stage-struck and theater-goers alike.

No Barbara Streisands ever performed in the leaky old seven-story structure with the legend "Capital Brewing and Malting Co." inscribed up the brick and stone walls. But many of the young actors and actresses, members of the Bandit Players and the Rocking Horse Players, went on to television and stage jobs.

Some 750 persons have acted in the theater since its establishment at the old brewery in 1954. The Bandit Players took their name from the area around the theater — known as Bandits' Alley for the type of characters that descended on the south end of the gold-rich town as its image tarnished.

The Rocking Horse Players, a children's enterprise that put on one show each year, took their name from the last beer made in the 94-year-old brewery — Rocking Horse Brew. The brewery function ended with Prohibition.

The brewery and that part of town fell into decay with the demise of the gold mines. The slum that eventually developed is now giving way to an ambitious urban renewal project.

City fathers have condemned the old brewery to a December death but say the theater can be moved elsewhere and continue.

However, the theater buffs who made the Brewery one of the best amateur stages in the country — and something unique to Montana and the cowboy West — insist the building is strong as ever and its destruction will destroy the theater.

"This thing will last another 150 years," said Walter Marshall, "but no one wants to understand. It would be physically impossible to move this thing anywhere else." He pointed to antique furniture stacked high and to a 25,000-piece wardrobe made up in part by 100year-old Paris originals.

Don Kerns, urban renewal's director of community relations on the project, said the chance for a last-minute act to save the structure was "zero."

Both sides in the argument say they "will do everything" they can to keep the theater operating. But the city refuses to see the old building rejuvenated and theater people say the end of the old brewery is the last act.

Nebraskans For Super Safety

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The state of Nebraska, which on an average November day records 129 traffic accidents, aims to get through the day Wednesday without a reportable mishap on its 98,763 miles of streets and highways.

Gov. J. James Exon has designated the day as "Super Safety Day," and for several weeks, newspapers and broadcasters have joined in a publicity buildup, coupled with safe driving tips.

The accident-free day, if realized, would save some $400,000 in accident costs, statisticians report. Over the past three years, the average daily November traffic toll has been 129 accidents, 56 injuries and 1.5 deaths.

A reportable traffic accident in Nebraska is one resulting in death or injury, or in which property damage exceeds $100.

Prospects that traffic deaths in Nebraska this year will reach an all-time high prompted the Super Safety Day promotion.

FDA Says No Lead Tinsel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says that "not a single strand" of lead Christmas tree tinsel should be found on store shelves this Yule season.

"It's gone. We have assurances that not one ounce will be sold this year," said Malcolm "Mac" Jensen, director of FDA's Bureau of Product Safety.

Last Christmas the agency was accused of agreeing secretly with several lead tinsel manufacturers not to publicize an understanding that production would stop Jan. 1, 1972, but sales could continue through the 1972 Christmas season.

Jensen denies it.

"There was never any effort to hide it," he said in an interview. "The decision was made internally not to publicize it because we feared that many people preferring the lead variety would stockpile it."

After the charges of secretdealing surfaced, Jensen said, "We got back to the industry and said, 'You haven't got a saleable product anymore. You might as well get out of the lead business.'"

At the same time, he said, the FDA asked customs agents to freeze any lead tinsel imports.

The FDA campaign is based on persuasion of manufacturers and importers following a conclusion by FDA in August 1971 that lead tinsel was an unnecessary risk to children with symptoms of lead poisoning. No absolute ban was imposed, Jensen said, for lack of medical verification to declare lead icicles a "health hazard."

Plant inspections have shown that no lead tinsel is being made in the United States, Jensen said, and customs officials have not reported any foreign products arriving here.

"We have assurances in writing from all manufacturers and importers that absolutely none will be distributed this year," he said.

MAKING IT PERFECTLY CLEAR, with the aid of a molecular model, Nobel winner Dr. Gerald Edelman explains research on the chemical structure of antibodies which won him half of this year's prize in medicine. Edelman, of New York's Rockefeller University, shares the award with Britain's Dr. Rodney R. Porter.

Galloping gobblers make for the finish line in the Montgomery, Ind., turkey race. Turkey race? That's right, or to be absolutely precise, "The Daviess County Turkey Trot Festival" which draws the world's fastest racing turkeys, a claim which no other community is likely to challenge. Above, "Firebird," jockeyed by Greg Miller, and "Felix Gonzales," jockeyed by Kenny Stoll, both of Montgomery, scramble for the lead. The winner: "Firebird," in :23. Right, Gregg and "Firebird" receive their world's championship trophy from David Graham, director of the National Turkey Federation, naturally. (Photos by Ron Critchlow, Washington Times-Herald)

Old West Theater ToBe Razed

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — The Old Brewery Theater, cradled in a gulch about as far Off Broadway as you can get, is to be crushed to rubble next month, a victim of urban renewal.

Out here, where culture wears cowboy boots, the small summer theater for 18 seasons offered something akin to Broadway action for both the stage-struck and theater-goers alike.

No Barbara Streisands ever performed in the leaky old seven-story structure with the legend "Capital Brewing and Malting Co." inscribed up the brick and stone walls. But many of the young actors and actresses, members of the Bandit Players and the Rocking Horse Players, went on to television and stage jobs.

Some 750 persons have acted in the theater since its establishment at the old brewery in 1954. The Bandit Players took their name from the area around the theater — known as Bandits' Alley for the type of characters that descended on the south end of the gold-rich town as its image tarnished.

The Rocking Horse Players, a children's enterprise that put on one show each year, took their name from the last beer made in the 94-year-old brewery — Rocking Horse Brew. The brewery function ended with Prohibition.

The brewery and that part of town fell into decay with the demise of the gold mines. The slum that eventually developed is now giving way to an ambitious urban renewal project.

City fathers have condemned the old brewery to a December death but say the theater can be moved elsewhere and continue.

However, the theater buffs who made the Brewery one of the best amateur stages in the country — and something unique to Montana and the cowboy West — insist the building is strong as ever and its destruction will destroy the theater.

"This thing will last another 150 years," said Walter Marshall, "but no one wants to understand. It would be physically impossible to move this thing anywhere else." He pointed to antique furniture stacked high and to a 25,000-piece wardrobe made up in part by 100year-old Paris originals.

Don Kerns, urban renewal's director of community relations on the project, said the chance for a last-minute act to save the structure was "zero."

Both sides in the argument say they "will do everything" they can to keep the theater operating. But the city refuses to see the old building rejuvenated and theater people say the end of the old brewery is the last act.

Nebraskans For Super Safety

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The state of Nebraska, which on an average November day records 129 traffic accidents, aims to get through the day Wednesday without a reportable mishap on its 98,763 miles of streets and highways.

Gov. J. James Exon has designated the day as "Super Safety Day," and for several weeks, newspapers and broadcasters have joined in a publicity buildup, coupled with safe driving tips.

The accident-free day, if realized, would save some $400,000 in accident costs, statisticians report. Over the past three years, the average daily November traffic toll has been 129 accidents, 56 injuries and 1.5 deaths.

A reportable traffic accident in Nebraska is one resulting in death or injury, or in which property damage exceeds $100.

Prospects that traffic deaths in Nebraska this year will reach an all-time high prompted the Super Safety Day promotion.

When Tom Seaver of the New York Mets struck out 15 world champion Pittsburgh Pirates in a 4-1 September victory for his 18th win of the year he got eight batters on change ups and seven on fast balls.

NEW MADRID--- Rick Thompson pumped in 23 points to lead the Kelly Hawks to a 64- 52 season-opening victory over Coach Carroll Cookson's New Madrid Indians Tuesday night.

The once- famed Tribe defense failed to contain the Hawks under the basket, allowing them to score at will, which prove the biggest NMHS problem in its opening bout.

Kelly opened a 20- 15 first quarter lead and never trailed. Although the Indians fought back for an early tie in the second period, the game was far out of reach after the third frame. Kelly blistered the goals for 21 points while checking the host to 10 markets.

NEW MADRID--- Rick Thompson pumped in 23 points to lead the Kelly Hawks to a 64- 52 season-opening victory over Coach Carroll Cookson's New Madrid Indians Tuesday night.

The once- famed Tribe defense failed to contain the Hawks under the basket, allowing them to score at will, which prove the biggest NMHS problem in its opening bout.

Kelly opened a 20- 15 first quarter lead and never trailed. Although the Indians fought back for an early tie in the second period, the game was far out of reach after the third frame. Kelly blistered the goals for 21 points while checking the host to 10 markets.

Northern Division All-Conference

Cape Girardeau Central heads for this weekend's state high school football playoffs with its fourth straight Northern Division championship and 13 all-division stars spicing its lineup.

Coach Gary Lynch landed six players on the first-team offensive team and seven on the first- team defensive unit selected by the coaches of the division.

Sikeston had only four players honored by the coaches, and only one of those made the first team. Pass-catching Glenn Guttenfelder was the one Bulldog named to the first team, while teammates Bill Colwick, Shane Wagoner and Roy Yarber were second-team choices.

Charleston was the only member of the seven- school league to fail to place a player on any of the four teams selected.

Southern and Bootheel Division all-stars will be named Thursday.

Delta Gives Out In Fourth

DELTA-- Lack of offensive punch in the fourth quarter thwarted coach Dale Harrison's Delta Bobcat basketball team from early visions of an upset against the Scott— Mississippi conference rival Oran Eagles Tuesday night, as the visitors rallied to a 63- 49 triumph.

DHS went four minutes of the final quarter without scoring and saw a slim 42- 40 lead erased as a pressing Eagle crew stormed to a 23-8 advantage to take their third straight win.

Otis Burley and Paul Taylor teamed for 36 points, most of them coming in the final eight minutes of play, to lead the Oran victory. Burley claimed high honors with 22 while Taylor contributed 14.

Delta took a 9- 6 lead in the first quarter and added to the margin with a 16- 15 advantage in the second period, but couldn't stay up with the pressing, rebounding Eagles in the final half of play.

Cape Girardeau Central heads for this weekend's state high school football playoffs with its fourth straight Northern Division championship and 13 all-division stars spicing its lineup.

Coach Gary Lynch landed six players on the first-team offensive team and seven on the first- team defensive unit selected by the coaches of the division.

Sikeston had only four players honored by the coaches, and only one of those made the first team. Pass-catching Glenn Guttenfelder was the one Bulldog named to the first team, while teammates Bill Colwick, Shane Wagoner and Roy Yarber were second-team choices.

Charleston was the only member of the seven- school league to fail to place a player on any of the four teams selected.

Southern and Bootheel Division all-stars will be named Thursday.

Delta Gives Out In Fourth

DELTA-- Lack of offensive punch in the fourth quarter thwarted coach Dale Harrison's Delta Bobcat basketball team from early visions of an upset against the Scott— Mississippi conference rival Oran Eagles Tuesday night, as the visitors rallied to a 63- 49 triumph.

DHS went four minutes of the final quarter without scoring and saw a slim 42- 40 lead erased as a pressing Eagle crew stormed to a 23- 8 advantage to take their third straight win.

Otis Burley and Paul Taylor teamed for 36 points, most of them coming in the final eight minutes of play, to lead the Oran victory. Burley claimed high honors with 22 while Taylor contributed 14.

Delta took a 9- 6 lead in the first quarter and added to the margin with a 16- 15 advantage in the second period, but couldn't stay up with the pressing, rebounding Eagles in the final half of play.

COOKING-UP

Today is dessert day! Not nationally, just in today's column. (I made it up.)

Everyone likes dessert of some kind, and before it's all over, we'll find a dessert to please everyone. At a recent potluck dinner, this little number bowled them over -- Cherry Delight. It's good.

Yogurt lovers will love Strawberry Frappe with its tartness. And the other puddings, well, if you like pudding, you'll probably like these. In any case, here we go, sweet tooth persons . . .

CHERRY DELIGHT

1 can Eagle Brand milk
1 can crushed pineapple
1 can pie cherries (drained)
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 large container of Cool Whip
1 cup chopped pecans

Mix Eagle Brand milk and lemon juice; add cherries and pineapple. Chill from 30 minutes to one hour and add the whipped topping Sprinkle pecans on top.

STRAWBERRY FRAPPE'

1/2 cup Miracle Whip salad dressing
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1 package (10 ounces) frozen strawberries, thawed and drained
2 teaspoons sugar

Combine salad dressing, sour cream, drained strawberries and sugar; mix until blended. Chill. Serve with fruit. Makes 1 3/4 cups.

HIDDEN TREASURE PUDDING

3/4 cup Grape-Nuts brand cereal
1/4 cup butter, melted
1/2 cup sugar
3 eggs, well beaten
2 cups milk
1/4 cup raisins (optional)
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg or cinnamon (optional)
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 egg white
2 tablespoons sugar

Thoroughly mix cereal with butter. Blend 1/2 cup sugar into beaten eggs; add cereal mixture and 2 cups milk, 1/4 cup raisins, 1 teasoon vanilla, 1/8 teaspoon nutmeg or cinnamon and 1/8 teaspoon salt. Blend well. Pour into one- quart baking dish; place in pan of hot water. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes; stir thoroughly. Meanwhile beat egg white until foamy throughout. Gradually beat in 2 tablespoons sugar until meringue forms stiff dessert. Then bake about 30 minutes longer, or until knife inserted one inch from center comes out clean and meringue is lightly browned. Serve warm or cooled. Makes about 4 cups or 6 servings.

CARMEL TOPPED DESSERT

1/3 cup sugar
1 package (3 ounces) Jell-O Golden Egg Custard Mix
1½ cups milk
1/2 cup light cream
1 egg yolk (optional)
Chopped nuts

Melt sugar in heavy skillet, stirring constantly until golden. Quickly pour into a small 2 1/2 cup bowl or casserole and rotate quickly to coat bottom and sides with syrup. Set aside. Blend custard mix with milk and cream in saucepan. For an even richer custard, add egg yolk. Bring quickly to a boil, stirring constantly. (Mixture will be thin.) Pour into syrup- lined bowl. Chill until set. Unmold. Sprinkle with nuts. Makes 2 cups or 4 servings.

MOCHA CUSTARD

1 package (3 ounces) Jello Golden Egg Custard mix
1/4 cup sugar
1 tablesoppn cocoa
2 teaspoons instant coffee
2 cups milk
1 egg yolk (optional)

MRS. JESSIE TATE'S BANANA PUDDING

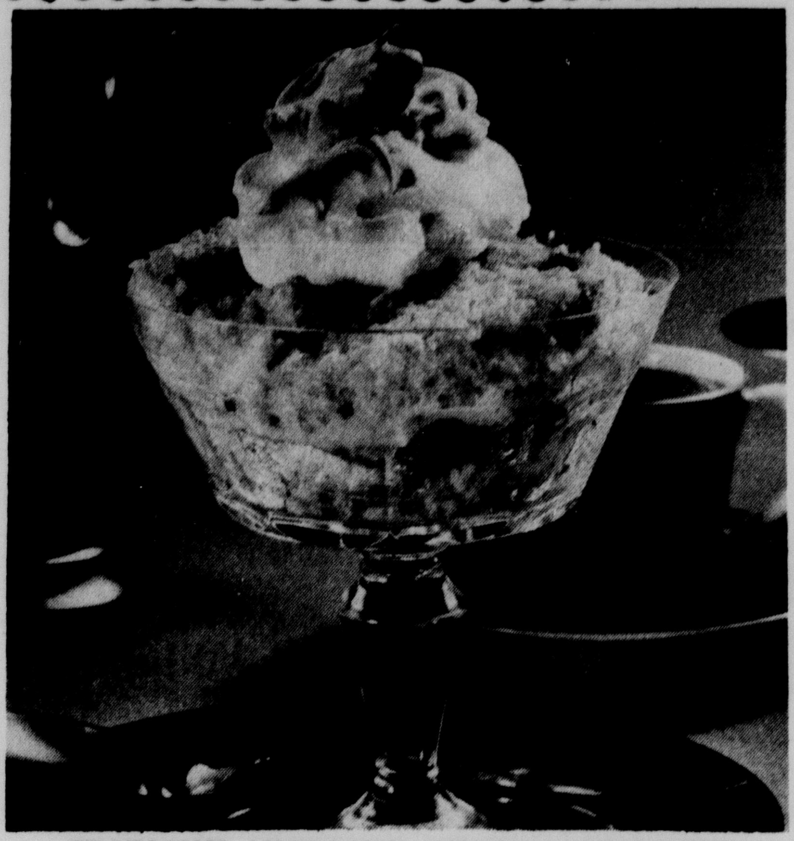
3/4 cup plus 1/3 cup sugar
1/4 cup cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 cups milk
3 eggs, separated
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
Vanilla wafers, about 30
5 or 6 ripe bananas
1/2 cup finely crushed ginger snaps, about 9

In heavy 2-quart saucepan, stir together 3/4 cup sugar, the cornstarch, and salt. Gradually stir in milk, keeping smooth. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil and boils three minutes. Remove from heat.

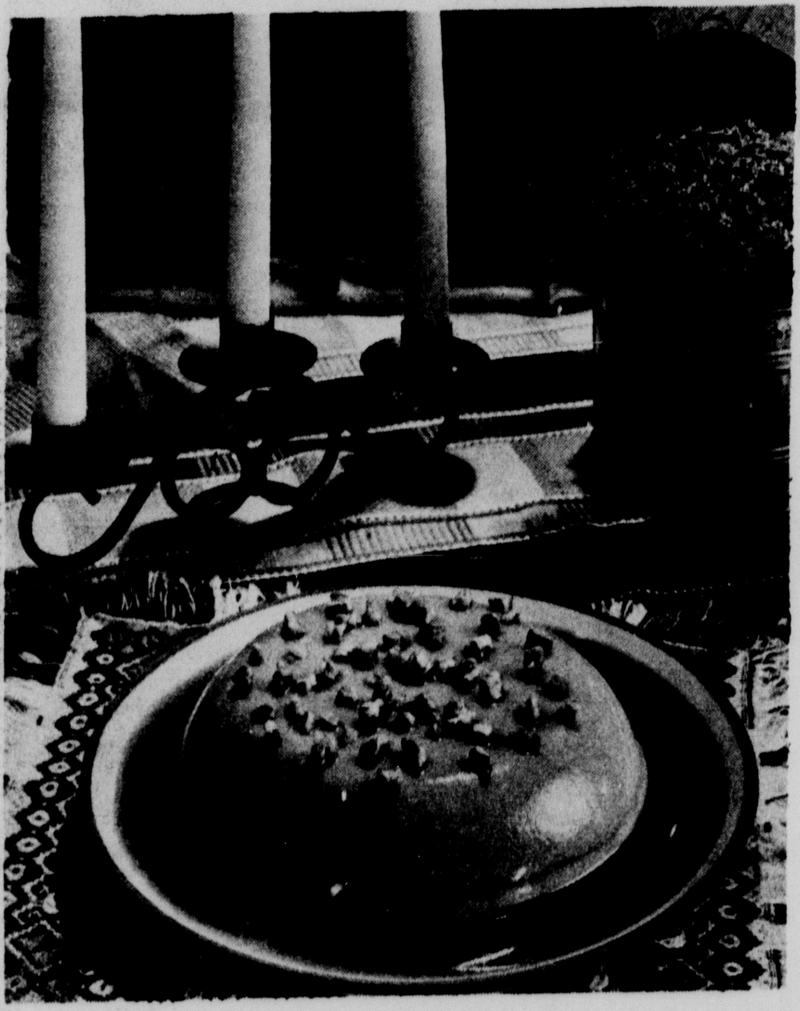
In a small mixing bowl beat egg yolks slightly; gradually stir into hot mixture in pan. Return to low heat and cook, stirring constantly for one minute. Remove from heat; stir in butter and vanilla. Cover with wax paper or plastic film and let cool.

In a 1 1/2- quart round glass casserole (7 1/2 by 2 1/2 inches or similar utensil arrange a layer of vanilla wafers, sliced bananas, half of the gingershanp crumbs and half the pudding. Repeat layers.

Beat egg whites until foamy; add remaining 1/3 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating well after each addition; continue to beat if necessary until stiff straight peaks form. Pile meringue lightly over pudding. Bake in a preheated 350- degree oven until browned -- about 15 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.



CRUNCHY NUT-LIKE CEREAL NUGGETS are the hidden treasure that makes this pudding so unusual - and so unusually good.



CARAMEL- TOPPED CUSTARD is made quickly and easily with a package of egg custard mix which is cooked, not baked, and chilled in a golden syrup-coated bowl or simple mold.

SLURPING TEA CAN BE MANNERLY

HONOLULU (AP) — "Chinese connoisseurs of tea are meticulous," wrote Mary Sia in a Chinese cookbook published by the University of Hawaii Press, and they have their own rules of etiquette.

"It is good manners to show appreciation by making plenty of noise while drinking," she wrote.

Gosh, is there anything more dull than being a housewife? Don't bother answering me cause I wouldn't believe you anyway. Nothing, I mean nothing, could be any more dullsville than the same routine day after day after day — make up the same bed, wash the same dirty dishes, sweep the same filthy floor, dust the same dusty tables, wash the same sticky fingerprints off, over and over the same lousy thing. I mean it never gets done because right away it gets undone again! And, have you ever listened to the conversation of a typical housewife? It's sad, I mean it's really sad. I could and should as it would save wear and tear on my vocal chords, have a tape recording made and every morning when I arose I could just punch a button and on would come, "Get up boys — it's time to get up — rise and shine — out of bed boys (verbatim for at least fifteen more minutes), then, "brush your teeth fellas, make up your beds boys, pick up the dirty clothes and put them in the clothes hamper, put your shoes on fellas, eat your breakfast boys, are you sure you picked your room up, don't forget your lunches and books fellas, put your coat and hat on, (frantically out the back door before they disappear from sight), come back and get your lunches and books you forgot fellas!" This is my stimulating pre-breakfast conversation each and every morning, no wonder I'm such a whizz at making small talk at cocktail parties — "gee and which side of the bed do you stand by to tuck the sheet in first." And in the evening at dinner we simply toss around fascinating topics like "peas make me want to vomit, or do beets make your teeth red, or I'd rather have hamburger than pork roast, or corn sticks in my teeth - get it out please cause your fingernails are longer." How's that grab you for an interesting evening? Oh well, I guess someday I'll miss all this repetition and down to earth conversations, but right now I sure could use a rest!!!

? Consumer's Question Box ?

By Margaret Dana

Q. Recently you recommended to a prospective bride that in planning her linen supply for her new home she use the traditional formula for towels; buying for each person two towels to be in use, to to be in the laundry and two on the shelf. This is exactly the advice given me 31 years ago when I was married. I do not feel in today's society we need this much shelf clutter. I use the local laundromat, others use their own washing machines and can do towels in less time that it used to take for a whole wash. I think your suggestion is too "horse and buggy" to use for today.

A. Your thoughts on this are very much like many consumers who form an opinion before understanding all the facts. In this case, the number of towels to buy is not based on any status symbol, or out- of- date tradition, but on the scientific fact that rotating the use of a product, such as towels, spreads the wear and gives a much longer life to each towel. Using and laundering the same towel repeatedly without giving it a rest cuts down the durability greatly.

Q. Your answer to the reader's question about Hong Kong tailored suits was so much like my own experience I wanted to let you know. I also ordered $140 worth of suits from an American representative of a Hong Kong tailor. To date, six months later, I have received no suits. I have brought this transaction to the attention of the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Office of Consular Services, etc., with no result. Can you suggest anything effective?

A. While some people have had perfectly satisfactory results in buying from salesmen representing a Hong Kong company, many have not. The Better Business Bureau of metropolitan New York now advises me that they have recently met with an association concerned with problems caused by some Hong Kong tailors-- the Association of Hong Kong Mail Order Houses, G.P.O. Box 2095, Hong Kong. The association will assist in trying to resolve customer complaints. If the association can't help, write the Department of Commerce and Industry, Fire Brigade Bldg., Hong Kong.

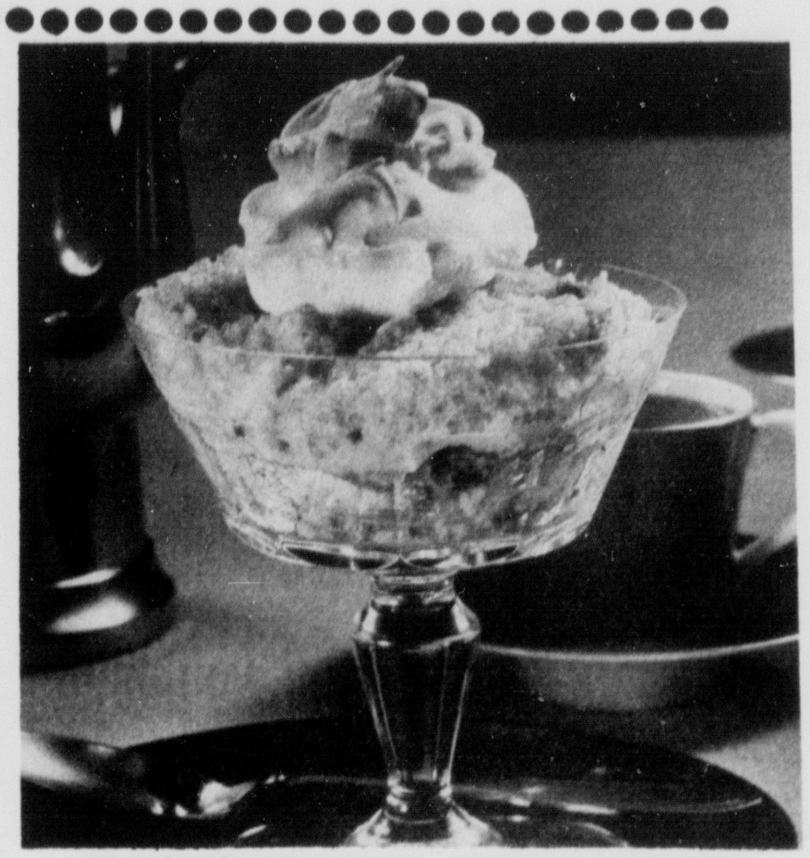
3 cups milk
3 eggs, separated
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
Vanilla wafers, about 30
5 or 6 ripe bananas
1/2 cup finely crushed ginger snaps, about 9

In heavy 2-quart saucepan, stir together 3/4 cup sugar, the cornstarch, and salt. Gradually stir in milk, keeping smooth. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil and boils three minutes. Remove from heat.

In a small mixing bowl beat egg yolks slightly; gradually stir into hot mixture in pan. Return to low heat and cook, stirring constantly for one minute. Remove from heat; stir in butter and vanilla. Cover with wax paper or plastic film and let cool.

In a 1 1/2- quart round glass casserole (7 1/2 by 2 1/2 inches or similar utensil arrange a layer of vanilla wafers, sliced bananas, half of the gingershanp crumbs and half the pudding. Repeat layers.

Beat egg whites until foamy; add remaining 1/3 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating well after each addition; continue to beat if necessary until stiff straight peaks form. Pile meringue lightly over pudding. Bake in a preheated 350- degree oven until browned -- about 15 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.



CRUNCHY NUT-LIKE CEREAL NUGGETS are the hidden treasure that makes this pudding so unusual – and so unusually good.

SLURPING TEA CAN BE MANNERLY

HONOLULU (AP) — "Chinese connoisseurs of tea are meticulous," wrote Mary Sia in a Chinese cookbook published by the University of Hawaii Press, and they have their own rules of etiquette.

"It is good manners to show appreciation by making plenty of noise while drinking," she wrote.

Coffee Corner

by Cherie

Gosh, is there anything more dull than being a housewife? Don't bother answering me cause I wouldn't believe you anyway. Nothing, I mean nothing, could be any more dullsville than the same routine day after day after day — make up the same bed, wash the same dirty dishes, sweep the same filthy floor, dust the same dusty tables, wash the same sticky fingerprints off, over and over the same lousy thing. I mean it never gets done because right away it gets undone again! And, have you ever listened to the conversation of a typical housewife? It's sad, I mean it's really sad. I could and should as it would save wear and tear on my vocal chords, have a tape recording made and every morning when I arose I could just punch a button and on would come, "Get up boys — it's time to get up — rise and shine — out of bed boys (verbatim for at least fifteen more minutes), then, "brush your teeth fellas, make up your beds boys, pick up the dirty clothes and put them in the clothes hamper, put your shoes on fellas, eat your breakfast boys, are you sure you picked your room up, don't forget your lunches and books fellas, put your coat and hat on, (frantically out the back door before they disappear from sight), come back and get your lunches and books you forgot fellas!" This is my stimulating pre-breakfast conversation each and every morning, no wonder I'm such a whizz at making small talk at cocktail parties — "gee and which side of the bed do you stand by to tuck the sheet in first." And in the evening at dinner we simply toss around fascinating topics like "peas make me want to vomit, or do beets make your teeth red, or I'd rather have hamburger than pork roast, or corn sticks in my teeth - get it out please cause your fingernails are longer." How's that grab you for an interesting evening? Oh well, I guess someday I'll miss all this repetition and down to earth conversations, but right now I sure could use a rest!!!

? Consumer's Question Box ?

By Margaret Dana

Q. Recently you recommended to a prospective bride that in planning her linen supply for her new home she use the traditional formula for towels; buying for each person two towels to be in use, to to be in the laundry and two on the shelf. This is exactly the advice given me 31 years ago when I was married. I do not feel in today's society we need this much shelf clutter. I use the local laundromat, others use their own washing machines and can do towels in less time that it used to take for a whole wash. I think your suggestion is too "horse and buggy" to use for today.

A. Your thoughts on this are very much like many consumers who form an opinion before understanding all the facts. In this case, the number of towels to buy is not based on any status symbol, or out- of- date tradition, but on the scientific fact that rotating the use of a product, such as towels, spreads the wear and gives a much longer life to each towel. Using and laundering the same towel repeatedly without giving it a rest cuts down the durability greatly.

Q. Your answer to the reader's question about Hong Kong tailored suits was so much like my own experience I wanted to let you know. I also ordered $140 worth of suits from an American representative of a Hong Kong tailor. To date, six months later, I have received no suits. I have brought this transaction to the attention of the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Office of Consular Services, etc., with no result. Can you suggest anything effective?

A. While some people have had perfectly satisfactory results in buying from salesmen representing a Hong Kong company, many have not. The Better Business Bureau of metropolitan New York now advises me that they have recently met with an association concerned with problems caused by some Hong Kong tailors-- the Association of Hong Kong Mail Order Houses, G.P.O. Box 2095, Hong Kong. The association will assist in trying to resolve customer complaints. If the association can't help, write the Department of Commerce and Industry, Fire Brigade Bldg., Hong Kong.

The Prayer from the Upper Room

Behold, I stand at the door, and knock. (Revelation 3:20) PRAYER: Dear God, teach us the hard lesson that sharing should be a gift of free and generous love, not an act to make an impression on others. In the Master's name. Amen.

Estimate Up For Imports Of Asian Drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal narcotics officials are revising sharply upward their estimates of the amount of heroin that Southeast Asian countries supply to drug traffickers within the United States.

New official estimates from the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs BNDD say that 30 per cent of the 6.5 to 10 tons of illicit heroin entering the country annually originates in Southeast Asia.

In congressional testimony and in other public statements, federal officials previously have estimated that Southeast Asian countries accounted for between 5 and 15 per cent of the heroin sold to the 500,000 or more addicts in the U. S.

For example, in August, retired Marine Gen. Lewis Walt cited official estimates in reporting to a Senate committee that "Southeast Asian heroin accounts for no more than 10 to 15 per cent of the total traffic coming into this country."

Walt, a former commander of U. S. Marines in Vietnam, has been commissionerd by the Senate Internal Security subcommittee to investigate world drug traffic.

He noted that Southeast Asia is one of the most important opium growing areas in the world and said the area "will become an increasingly important source of illicit opiates now that Turkey is phasing out legal production." Herion is produced from opium.

On June 9, Nelson Gross, State Department coordinator for international narcotics matters, told a congressional committee, "We estimate that probably only 5 per cent and certainly no more than 10 per cent of the heroin presently flowing to the United States originates in Southeast Asia."

At about that time, Sen. William B. Spong Jr., D-Va., submitted a series of questions about international drug traffic to John Ingersoll, head of BNDD. After some prodding, the answers recently came through and included the far higher estimates for Southeast Asia's share.

The BNDD report said its figures on the sources of heroin sold in the United States came from identification of traffickers. BNDD said 60 per cent of the heroin sold to U. S. addicts originated in the Near East and another 10 per cent in Mexico.

CORRECT ANGLE FOR STRIPPING

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Thomas Harris, the new state Natural Resources commissioner, says he will interpret strictly the 27-degree limit for land that can be strip mined.

State law prohibits stripping on slopes with greater angle, but Harris said the lack of standard measurements has prevented proper enforcement.

What's The Law?

The Case Of The Iron Curtain

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Carol was of the opinion that idle gossip was never idle. Consequently, when one of her girl friends with a keen sense of rumor informed her that her husband George was having an affair with another woman, Carol repeatedly confronted her husband George with the fact. George, however, had little confidence in gossip, particularly when it concerned him, and he suggested to his irate wife that she pay no more attention to it than he did.

As the gossip continued, however, Carol threw up an iron curtain between herself and her husband. The result? Husband George finally brought an action for a divorce on the grounds of personal indignities.

"She looks at me like I was a mirage," he complained in court. "She doesn't cook, clean or do anything else a wife's supposed to do. And all because of unfounded gossip."

"Where there's smoke there's fire," was Carol's answer. "What's more, my girl friend is very reliable. Certainly, when a man runs around with another woman, he's got no right to expect anything from his wife."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you grant George a divorce because of his wife's iron curtain?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! The judge held that when a wife creates an iron curtain between herself and her husband because of a rumor, unsupported by corroboration, so as to reduce the marriage to an empty shell, her husband is properly entitled to a divorce because of the personal indignities he is forced to endure as a consequence thereof.

OAKRIDGE, Ore. (AP) — The City of Oakridge, in Oregon's Cascade Mountains, is having second thoughts about the money collection boxes it put in GreenWaters Park.

Some plants have two kinds of flowers, both growing on the same plant.

California Valley Perfect For Variety Of Movie Sets

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — The hump-back hills of the cattle ranch are studded with wooden oil derricks, and one of them is rumbling ominously. Suddenly it blows, and black liquid soars into the California sky.

An oil strike in the fertile San Joaquin Valley? It's only makebelieve, part of Stanley Kramer's new film, "Oklahoma Crude," starring George C. Scott, Faye Dunaway, Jack Palance and John Mills.

Why would Kramer duplicate a 1912 Oklahoma oil field on a mid-Cali7ornia cattle ranch?

"We looked all over Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana to find a locale for the picture," explained the producer-director. "Nothing would fit. We needed wooden derricks and unclutteree sky. Everywhere we looked there were power lines ruining the view.

"Then my location man, Ivan Volkman, remembered this location from a western Willy Wyler made, 'The Big Country.' It was bought by a Basque at the turn of the century; the railroad sold it at a dollar an acre for 5,000 acres. It has the rolling hills we need — and no wires to disturb the view."

Columbia Pictures craftsmen put up 18 realistic derricks, including one that could produce both a gusher and a natural gas explosion.

The Stockton area thus is proving once more its versatility as a locale for Hollywood movies. It is the most-used location in California, and perhaps in the nation.

Judge Rules Voiceprints Acceptable For Trail Use

BOSTON (AP) — For the first time in Massachusetts, a judge has ruled that "voiceprints," spectrographic impressions of the recorded voice, may be used at a trial.

Judge James C. Roy in Suffolk Superior Court ruled Monday that eight persons facing trial on gambling charges can be required to have their voices recorded to be used as voiceprints.

The decision was a victory for Dist. Atty. Garrett H. Byrne who sought to compare voiceprints of the defendants with those of wiretaps made by his detectives.

California Ghost Towns Walking Away

BODIE, Calif. (AP) — Ask a ranger where to find one of California's ghost towns these days, and he's likely to look you over pretty closely. He may look you over when you come back, too.

Or he might just refuse to tell you at all.

The problem is: California's ghost towns are disappearing piece by piece into the backs of campers, four-wheel drive vehicles and even helicopters.

"Up in Boulder Flat, someone hooked a four-wheel drive vehicle onto the porch of one of the log cabins and jerked it away from the building," said Lee Symmonds, historian of Mono County, in east-central California.

"It used to be that people hiked or drove into these places to take a few pictures and to poke around a bit. Most of them still probably do. But every year we see more and more vandalism," he said in an interview.

One reason is the soaring market value for antiques such as bottles, kerosene lamps and miner's tools.

Symmonds said he once caught thieves dismantling a gold mill that had been donated to the Mono County Museum.

Burglars took $2,000 worth of artifacts from a miner's museum, "the small items like whisky bottles, mustache cups and an opium scale, that have a high value and are easily sold," said Clyde Newlin, a district supervisor of the California Division of Beaches and Parks.

The Claraville Cemetery in the Piute Mountains was torn up, said Richard Bailey, Kern County historian. "They left the bones scattered all over the countryside."

Officials said one team of pot hunters, as they are called, hired a helicopter to get into the rugged canyons of the Inyo Mountains. They practically dismantled one entire town.

Even the curiosity seeker who considers himself innocent may be breaking the law, officials say. He picks up an old bottle or a wheel that appears to belong to no one, and this is theft. If the land is public, it is protected by the 1906 Antiquities Act. If it is private, state theft laws prevail.

Rockey Rockwell, a ranger at Inyo National Forest, won't even tell newsmen where the ghost towns are.

"I'd like to, but I just can't," he said. "The pot hunters might find the place if you write about it, and then they'd dismantle it, piece by piece by piece."

Gantry Leaves Audiences Dazzled Or Annoyed

Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — His fellow songwriters call him a genius who's too far ahead of his time to be understood.

Whatever the case, Chris Gantry can play the dickens out of a guitar and thrash out a lyric that leaves you perplexed—not quite knowing whether to weep, laugh or study it like a poem.

At 29, he's regarded as one of the most brilliant but enigmatic singer-songwriters this music town has ever run into. He's been called the "Nashville poet," "the world's biggest puton artist" and "a man who was doing four years ago what Kris Kristofferson is doing nowadays."

"I don't know whether Gantry is a tortured soul or a free spirit," says one of Nashville's better known songwriters. "I'd say he's a free spirt."

Trying to describe Gantry's musical mode is a virtual impossibility because his style is unlike anyone else's. His most recent published product, an album entitled "Motormouth," has to be one of the most fascinating blends of country, folk and rock music ever devised.

"I'm a songwriter first. I sing what I write and I don't dig specializing in one kind of music," says the outspoken artist.

Despite his vast repetoire, Gantry remains primarily a "street picker" who peddles his work from one local club to anoter—not really giving a hoot whether anyone accepts him or not. Or so he says.

Gantry came to Nashville in 1963 from Jamaica, N.Y., where his father was an auctioneer. Two years ago he moved to a farm in nearby Franklin, a place he calls "my rock 'n roll turkey farm."

Before that, he said, "I lived on the streets of Nashville just like everybody else trying to make it in this business."

In a recent interview, which came on the heels of an impressive performance, Gantry detailed his attitude on life and music. He appeared disgusted with his musical surroundings and said he's on the verge of chucking his career. It went like this:

"I'm going to write for one more year and turn in all my songs and let it go where it may. Then, I'm going to split this town and live a little. I'll probably go to the South Sea islands.

"Competition is wrong. It shouldn't have any place in music. When I first came here, I gave my all for everybody. I hung out at the right places and paid my dues.

"But when I wanted to do something that was really me, all the publishers turned their backs.

"Any time money is the end of a musical product, it's immediately screwed up.

"I don't have the temperament a lot of these guys do. I used to be real enthusiastic and energetic. You know, I've been through seven publishers and made money for all of them.

"People say I'm uncooperative and that I'm a risk. You know what I think? I think they don't want to understand me."

"Compromise?" he said. "If that's what an artist is all about, then I don't care about being one.

"There's things I could dig more in life — like nature, children and easy times.

"Music-wise, I know I can write and sing. Whether I get anything to offer in the way of a marketable product is another matter."

After the interview, Gantry appeared on stage for another set. He began playing, but the audience was still restless from the brief intermission and chatted in a low tone. Gantry appeared offended.

"Look man," he told the audience. "How can I really play if y'all keep talking? Now either you can split or I'll split. But let's get on with it one way or the other."

The crowd quieted, fast. And, once the initial shock eased off, they fixed their eyes on the dynamic performer—partly out of politeness but mostly out of awe with his music, which he started writing at age 15.

"It bothers me a lot when they talk," Gantry said of the small group. "They don't know better."

"It did me a lot of good," he said, "but I hate it. It's too commercial."

Other tunes he's written, which have med moderate success, include "Sundown Mary," and "Atlanta, Ga., Strawy.'4At present, Gantry is writing for "the House of Cash," made famous by entertainer Johnny Cash. He says he's writing for Cash for no pay, apparently keeping in line with his conviction that money should not be the primary goal of a songwriter.

Judge Rules Voiceprints Acceptable For Trail Use

BOSTON (AP) — For the first time in Massachusetts, a judge has ruled that "voiceprints," spectrographic impressions of the recorded voice, may be used at a trial.

Judge James C. Roy in Suffolk Superior Court ruled Monday that eight persons facing trial on gambling charges can be required to have their voices recorded to be used as voiceprints.

The decision was a victory for Dist. Atty. Garrett H. Byrne who sought to compare voiceprints of the defendants with those of wiretaps made by his detectives.

California Ghost Towns Walking Away

BODIE, Calif. (AP) — Ask a ranger where to find one of California's ghost towns these days, and he's likely to look you over pretty closely. He may look you over when you come back, too.

Or he might just refuse to tell you at all.

The problem is: California's ghost towns are disappearing piece by piece into the backs of campers, four-wheel drive vehicles and even helicopters.

''Up in Boulder Flat, someone hooked a four-wheel drive vehicle onto the porch of one of the log cabins and jerked it away from the building,'' said Lee Symmonds, historian of Mono County, in east-central California.

"It used to be that people hiked or drove into these places to take a few pictures and to poke around a bit. Most of them still probably do. But every year we see more and more vandalism,'' he said in an interview.

One reason is the soaring market value for antiques such as bottles, kerosene lamps and miner's tools.

Symmonds said he once caught thieves dismantling a gold mill that had been donated to the Mono County Museum.

Burglars took $2,000 worth of artifacts from a miner's museum, "the small items like whisky bottles, mustache cups and an opium scale, that have a high value and are easily sold,'' said Clyde Newlin, a district supervisor of the California Division of Beaches and Parks.

The Claraville Cemetery in the Piute Mountains was torn up, said Richard Bailey, Kern County historian. "They left the bones scattered all over the countryside.''

Officials said one team of pot hunters, as they are called, hired a helicopter to get into the rugged canyons of the Inyo Mountains. They practically dismantled one entire town.

Even the curiosity seeker who considers himself innocent may be breaking the law, officials say. He picks up an old bottle or a wheel that appears to belong to no one, and this is theft. If the land is public, it is protected by the 1906 Antiquities Act. If it is private, state theft laws prevail.

"I'd like to, but I just can't,'' he said. "The pot hunters might find the place if you write about it, and then they'd dismantle it, piece by piece by piece.''

Bullpen coach Joe Pignatano of the New York Mets reached his 43rd birthday on Aug. 4.

Gantry Leaves Audiences Dazzled Or Annoyed

Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — His fellow songwriters call him a genius who's too far ahead of his time to be understood.

His music publishers all him a cocky, brash kid who's putting himself and the entire world on.

And his audiences say he's a fascinating performer who can leave you dazzled one second and annoyed the next.

Whatever the case, Chris Gantry can play the dickens out of a guitar and thrash out a lyric that leaves you perplexed—not quite knowing whether to weep, laugh or study it like a poem.

At 29, he's regarded as one of the most brilliant but enigmatic singer-songwriters this music town has ever run into. He's been called the "Nashville poet," "the world's biggest puton artist" and "a man who was doing four years ago what Kris Kristofferson is doing nowadays."

"I don't know whether Gantry is a tortured soul or a free spirit," says one of Nashville's better known songwriters. "I'd say he's a free spirt."

Trying to describe Gantry's musical mode is a virtual impossibility because his style is unlike anyone else's. His most recent published product, an album entitled "Motormouth," has to be one of the most fascinating blends of country, folk and rock music ever devised.

"I'm a songwriter first. I sing what I write and I don't dig specializing in one kind of music," says the outspoken artist.

Despite his vast repetoire, Gantry remains primarily a "street picker" who peddles his work from one local club to anoter—not really giving a hoot whether anyone accepts him or not. Or so he says.

Gantry came to Nashville in 1963 from Jamaica, N.Y., where his father was an auctioneer. Two years ago he moved to a farm in nearby Franklin, a place he calls "my rock 'n roll turkey farm."

Before that, he said, "I lived on the streets of Nashville just like everybody else trying to make it in this business.''

In a recent interview, which came on the heels of an impressive performance, Gantry detailed his attitude on life and music. He appeared disgusted with his musical surroundings and said he's on the verge of chucking his career. It went like this:

"I'm going to write for one more year and turn in all my songs and let it go where it may. Then, I'm going to split this town and live a little. I'll probably go to the South Sea islands.

"Competition is wrong. It shouldn't have any place in music. When I first came here, I gave my all for everybody. I hung out at the right places and paid my dues.

"But when I wanted to do something that was really me, all the publishers turned their backs.

"Any time money is the end of a musical product, it's immediately screwed up.

''I don't have the temperament a lot of these guys do. I used to be real enthusiastic and energetic. You know, I've been through seven publishers and made money for all of them.

''People say I'm uncooperative and that I'm a risk. You know what I think? I think they don't want to understand me."

"Compromise?" he said. "If that's what an artist is all about, then I don't care about being one.

"There's things I could dig more in life — like nature, children and easy times.

"Music-wise, I know I can write and sing. Whether I get anything to offer in the way of a marketable product is another matter."

After the interview, Gantry appeared on stage for another set. He began playing, but the audience was still restless from the brief intermission and chatted in a low tone. Gantry appeared offended.

"Look man," he told the audience. "How can I really play if y'all keep talking? Now either you can split or I'll split. But let's get on with it one way or the other."

The crowd quieted, fast. And, once the initial shock eased off, they fixed their eyes on the dynamic performer—partly out of politeness but mostly out of awe with his music, which he started writing at age 15.

"It bothers me a lot when they talk," Gantry said of the small group. "They don't know better."

"It did me a lot of good,'' he said, "but I hate it. It's too commercial."

Other tunes he's written, which have med moderate success, include "Sundown Mary," and "Atlanta, Ga., Strawy.'4At present, Gantry is writing for "the House of Cash,'' made famous by entertainer Johnny Cash. He says he's writing for Cash for no pay, apparently keeping in line with his conviction that money should not be the primary goal of a songwriter.
